Administration reconsiders $2 billion aid to cities bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration is reconsidering a $2 billion antirecession bill for cities and states after the nation's mayors appealed for help in fighting unemployment.

The decision to reconsider the measure, which the administration previously has opposed, was announced Thursday after a meeting with President Ford, administration officials and more than 120 mayors.

The antirecession measure now pending in Congress would give states and cities with 6 per cent unemployment for three consecutive months the money to spend as they saw fit.

The mayors' position, adopted earlier this week at the convention of the U.S. Conference of Mayors in Boston, was pushed by Democratic and Republican mayors at the meeting with Ford administration officials, reflecting the bipartisan support the stance won at the convention.

Ford spoke with the mayors in a 22-minute open meeting with the mayors, who then went into a closed session with other high officials. Sources said that during the closed meeting in the White House East Room, Mayor Jack Hunter of Youngstown, Ohio, a staunch supporter of the Ford administration, asked Treasury Secretary William E. Simon what he should tell his constitutents who were out of work and had families.

Hunter told the meeeting that he shared the administration's view that inflation is the major problem but that telling that to his constituents didn't meet their immediate needs.

Simon's response was unknown. The administration has opposed the program on the basis that it would be inflationary and that it might dilute congressional willingness to re-enact the general revenue-sharing program, which expires next year.

After the session, Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk, chairman of the National Republican Mayors Caucus, proposed a compromise by saying a 10 per cent figure, rather than 6 per cent, might not be as inflationary.

James Falk, associate director of the White House domestic council, said factors in the administration's review of the bill include Ford's over-all restraint on spending and other bills under consideration. He referred to Ford's support for an extension of jobless benefits as evidence of the administration's willingess to embrace the concept of an antirecession program.

Ford also used the meeting to renew his plea that the revenue-sharing formula remained unchanged when the program comes up for renewal. The Boston mayoral convention defeated moves by big-city mayors to amend the formula to give more money to poorer cities.

Ford warned, "There are still in the Congress many members who were opposed or are opposed to general revenue-sharing and if we tinker with the formula ... it would be my fear and it should be yours that the whole program would not be extended."

That argument won wide applause from the mayors. However, at least one mayor, who faces 22 per cent unemployment, wasn't buying it. Detroit Mayor Coleman Young said later that despite Ford's position and the position of the mayors' conference, he intended "to press personally for revision of that formula."

Asked how far he was willing to press the matter, Young said, "All the way to the point of jeopardizing the entire bill."

Heavy smoke hampering firemen

Hundreds trapped in skyscraper

NEW YORK (AP) — A two-alarm fire broke out in a midtown skyscraper today and the fire department said a number of persons were unable to get out of the building because of heavy smoke.

"Some persons are 'technically trapped.' We have men with them but we do not feel it would be advisable to try and walk them through the smoke on the stairwells," a fire department spokesman said.

He said it was an electrical fire that began on the 18th floor with very heavy smoke which was spread by the air conditioning and created "some panic among workers on upper floors."

The blaze erupted shortly before 11 a.m. in the 33-story building at 40 West 57th St., near Sixth Avenue about six blocks north of Rockefeller Center. At least three persons were rushed from the building and treated for smoke inhalation.

Two police helicopters flew above the building as thousands of spectators gathered around the busy location. One of the pilots reported seeing hundreds of persons on the roof.

Windows of the building were being broken to let smoke and heat out. Persons in the street below scurried to avoid the falling shards of glass.

"There was increasing amount of smoke, then a lot of people began to hurry around and try to run. Thank goodness firemen arrived and calmed things down," said Janine Thrash, who worked on the 25th floor.

Another woman who was receiving oxygen said, "I thought we were all going to suffocate. The smoke was terrible — very dark and very smelly."

The police emergency number and fire department said they were getting numerous calls from persons who were higher in the building and wanted to get out.

One woman working in the building called a relative and said she was with about 70 persons on the 30th floor. She said they had been told to stay there and not to try to get out.

Launch sites poised

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Activity quickened at launch sites half a world apart today as Russian technicians began joining a Soyuz spaceship with its booster rocket and American astronauts continued rehearsals for the U.S.-Soviet space mission set for Tuesday.

In a telephone report to his American counterpart at the Houston Space Center, Dr. Konstantin D. Bushuyev, Apollo-Soyuz technical director for the Soviet Union, said preparations were on schedule at the Baikonur Cosmodrome.

Bushuyev told American technical director Glynn S. Lunney that the rocket and spacecraft will be moved to the launch pad on Saturday.

The movement of the Soyuz to the launch pad just three days before launching underscores the Russian approach of conducting most of the prelaunch checkout in a hangar. Weather often is severe at Baikonur, with ice storms in the winter and heat waves in summer. The temperature there Thursday was 113 degrees.

Lunney told Bushuyev that launch preparations were going well at Cape Canaveral. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration prefers placing its rocket and spacecraft on the launch pad for much of the prelaunch checkout. The Apollo and Saturn booster for the upcoming mission have been on the pad since March 24, well-protected by a surrounding service tower.

The Soyuz is to be launched at 8:20 a.m. EDT Monday, with Apollo set to lift off that day at 3:50 p.m.

Sniper scare in S.D. area leads to collision; 5 hurt

A sniper scare resulted in the closure of the Interstate 210 Freeway in the San Dimas area late Thursday afternoon while Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies searched nearby hills, vainly looking for an armed man.

One traffic accident which injured five persons resulted from the incident.

The freeway was shut down from about 5 p.m. until almost 8 p.m., when deputies determined that there was no sniper in the area at that time. The section closed was from Covina Boulevard to the junction with the San Bernardino Freeway.

The closure was ordered after a motorist, Ronald J. Legault of Baldwin Park, told deputies he heard a shot while he was southbound near Via Verde Avenue. He said he pulled to the side of the freeway where several other motorists also had stopped and was told they had heard shots, too.

Twelve sheriff's units were sent to the area in addition to a team of 15 members of the Special Weapons and Tactics detail. While the heavily-armed deputies searched the hills overlooking the freeway, two sheriff's helicopters hovered aloft, aiding in the search.

Deputies said later they found no evidence of a sniper. No cars had been hit and there had been no injuries. The freeway was reopened just before 8 p.m.

The accident occurred as one motorist was slowing as he approached traffic flares set out by highway patrol north of Arrow Highway.

David Medberry, 20, of Covina, was in the outside lane and slowed to about 10 miles per hour when his car was struck from behind by an auto driven by Karen Cram, 20, of Glendora, who was traveling about 55 miles per hour, officers said.

Miss Cram was admitted to San Dimas Community Hospital with head, leg and arm injuries. Her condition today was termed satisfactory.

Those treated and released were the other driver and passengers in his car, Michelle Medberry, 20, Jason and Sean Medberry, 11 months, all of Covina.

Petition asks turf betting in eateries

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Secretary of State's office says a petition for parimutuel horse race betting in restaurants throughout the state is now being circulated.

The report said Thursday the betting would start with a 25year experiment in which only the restaurants in California City and Adelanto, in Kern and San Bernardino counties, would be eligible.

The petition, to place a constitutional amendment proposal on the 1976 primary election ballot, needs 499,846 signatures by Nov. 28. It also needs the approval of two-thirds of the voters.

Injury toll mounts

PAMPLONA, Spain (AP) — The toll in this year's running of the bulls increased today as two more persons were seriously injured and a dozen others sustained lesser injuries.

Officials said Antonio Pina, 15, was gored on the 900-yard run to the bull ring, and Jose Luis Lopez suffered head injuries when a bull knocked him down as it crossed the ring to a chute at the end of the run.

One person was killed Wednesday, on the third day of the running.

Weather

Fair and smoggy today and Saturday, with little change in temperatures. High today 95, low tonight 71, high Saturday 94. The high Thursday was 93, and the overnight low was 63. Saturday's sunrise 5:49, sunset 8:04.

Predict heat, smog will continue over weekend

Heat and smog continued to plague valley residents today and more of the same has been forecast for the weekend.

First stage episodes were expected both in the Pomona and the Ontario areas this afternoon, and there was a possibility that the ozone reading in the Upland area might reach .35 parts per million parts of air, causing a second stage alarm.

There were predictions of slightly lower temperatures for Sunday and meterologists expect the smog front to weaken somewhat because of it. The mercury is expected to hover at 95 this afternoon and Saturday.

Because of the heavy smog, officials at the Air Pollution Control Districts both in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties urged children, the elderly and persons who are ill to remain indoors and avoid strenuous physical activities.

Air pollution also forced San Bernardino County officials to close the Cucamonga-Guasti Regional Park Thursday. They said they will do it again today and Saturday if readings reach the second stage level in the area.

Although the smog readings reached .36 in Upland Thursday, the area avoided a second stage episode because the level did not remain that high for long.

Elsewhere in the valley, the smog reading hit .27 in the Pomona-Walnut area and .20 in the Ontario-Chino area Thursday.

Officials said that with the third straight day of smog episodes expected for the valley today, the current stretch is the worst of the year.

However, the APCD said the heat front, which brought 97 degrees to Ontario and 94 to Pomona Thursday, is expected to cool somewhat by Sunday. This may not break up the smog but it probably will reduce the ozone content, they said.

Design changes ordered in jets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration today ordered design changes in all wide bodied jet aircraft to improve their ability to withstand sudden in-flight depressurization.

Such depressurization is believed responsible for the 1974 crash of a Turkish DC10 jet outside Paris. That crash killed 346 persons.

The FAA said the order means that approximately 275 Boeing 747s, Lockheed 10-11s and McDonald-Douglas DC-10s now in service with U.S. airines will have to be modified.

Acting FAA administrator James Dow said the cost will total between $40 million and $43 million. He estimated another $18 million would be lost because of the time the aircraft would be out of service.

All modifications must be completed by Dec. 31, 1977, the FAA said.

The order specifically requires modifications that "provide additional venting capability or an increase in floor strength, or both, as necessary, to prevent floor collapse caused by the decompression effects resulting from a sudden, large, in-flight opening in any portion of any lower deck cargo compartment."

The modifications must make the aircraft strong enough to withstand decompression caused by any opening of up to 20 square feet.

Dow said the order does not state whether the aircraft builders or the airline now flying the planes must pay for the modification. He said the question of who bears the cost will have to be worked out by the airlines and the manufacturers.

Dow said there was no similar standard for narrow body jets.

He said the FAA decided to require the modifications because the wide bodied jets carry more people and because the three basic planes will make up much of the future airliner fleet.

There have been two reported incidents where sudden decompression caused problems in wide bodied aircraft. The first occurred on an American Airlines jet while flying over Windsor, Ontario, in 1972. That aircraft landed safely. The second involved the Turkish Airlines crash.

Although French authorities have not yet determined the cause of the Turkish plane disaster, testimony indicates that an improperly closed cargo door may have blown off the plane, causing a sudden loss of air pressure in the cargo hold. This decompression apparently caused the floor of the aircraft to buckle, jamming control cables and causing the pilot to lose control of the plane.

A blown cargo door also was indicated in the Canadian incident.

The FAA order is the result of a recommendation made earlier by the National Transportation Safety Board, an accident investigating agency. The safety board urged that the planes be changed to minimize the effects of decompression in the cargo holds.

Four Spanish Air Force jets collide over sea

MURCIA, Spain (AP) — Four Spanish air force jets collided today during a formation practice flight and plunged into the Mediterranean Sea, killing all five officers aboard, the Air Ministry announced.

The multiple collision occurred shortly after the Spanish-made Saeta type jets took off from the San Javier Air Academy on the outskirts of Murcia for the routine practice flight.

The victims included two majors, two captains and a lieutenant. One of the planes had a two-man crew.

The ministry said there was no immediate indication what caused the multiple collision, the worst ever in Spanish military aviation history.

Two sides of Cher: flighty and serious

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two sides of Cher, television's spangled, sparkling superstar, were displayed this week in separate but revealing occurrences.

The 29-year-old willowy, raven-haired singer-comedienne with the overexposed navel showed signs in the first instance of being flighty and indecisive.

Only nine days after her surprise marriage to rock musician Gregg Allman, she filed suit for divorce citing the standard "irreconcilable differences." The marriage came only three days after she had shed her first husband, Sonny Bono, 40.

She was revealed as strongwilled and level-headed in grand jury testimony released Thursday in the death of a rock musician last September.

"I am trying to make my own decisions now after years of having had them made for me," she said Wednesday after the divorce papers were filed. "I am bound to make wrong ones from time to time, and this was one of those times."

Despite protests by Allman, 27, that it was all a misunderstanding and that she would retract the action, Cher said Thursday through a spokesman, "I have not changed my mind. I am proceeding with the divorce."

She is presently reported in seclusion "for a rest" at an undisclosed location in Southern California. She postponed for two weeks the taping of the first episode of her variety show for this fall.

In the grand jury testimony, she testified that she watched Robbie McIntosh, 28, inhale two "hits"—or doses—of a white powder given him by Kenneth Moss, 31, a former Wall Street "whiz kid" charged with McIntosh's murder. Moss pleaded innocent at his arraignment.

She said when she arrived at the Moss' party, Moss offered her a white powder in a piece of tin foil. She took it for cocaine.

"Do you want some," she said Moss asked her.

"No," she said she replied, saying Moss then said, "Just as well."

Cher, and Sonny as well, were long known to be antidrug within a music environment where the drugs often flowed freely.

She said she urged that a doctor be called for McIntosh after he became ill, but Moss turned her down with the comment that it was "no big deal."

She is credited with saving the life of another musician at the party, Alan Gorrie, who like McIntosh was a member of the Average White Band. After he became ill on what the prosecution says was heroin she took him to her home for treatment.

Cher has received a lot of attention lately. Her weekly variety show on CBS is a hit. She had her picture on the cover of Time magazine, along with a cover story.

People, TV Guide, newspapers and everyone else have turned the spotlight on her. Cher is on her own now after more than 10 years of guidance by Sonny. She was Trilby to his Svengali, and he ran their careers with an iron fist, despite the witty battle of the sexes they waged on television.

(A judge is still to rule on custody of their 6-year-old daughter, Chastity, and division of community property.)

Shortly after the breakup of their marriage, Sonny said in an interview that "Cher has something to find out on her own. I don't see anything wrong with that. She must find out."

Consumerism . . .

Food prices

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Shoppers can expect continued reductions in the price of meat, produce and grocery items in the coming week, a newspaper survey showed Thursday.

Recent consumer resistance to the price of beef, market executives say, will mean lower prices for many cuts next week, according to the Los Angeles Times survey.

The survey indicated the greatest reductions will be in the price for chuck and round cuts.

Chicken prices should drop from two to four cents a pound next week, the survey showed, but pork prices will remain at already high prices with some increases for bacon, hams and spare ribs.

In the produce department, tomatoes and bell peppers should be down somewhat next week, but green beans may cost a few cents more per pound. Avocadoes, lettuce, cucumbers and squash will remain good buys, the survey showed.

Sugar prices are expected to hold steady for one more week despite an increase of two cents per pound in wholesale prices. But the increases are expected to be passed along to the consumer the following week.

Harvests

SACRAMENTO (AP(— There will be record harvests of grapes, wheat, lemons, walnuts and grapefruit this year, the California Crop and Livestock Reporting Service predicts.

Officials said Thursday they expect the total grape harvest will be 4.2 million tons, up 6 per cent over the previous record set in 1965 and 12 per cent above last year.

Wine grapes are expected to be up 15 per cent from last year's record 1.4 million tons, mainly because 52,000 more acres of vines have started bearing.

Table grape production is down nearly 7 per cent from last year, but raisin production is up 15 per cent to the fifth highest year on record, the service said.

Other predictions:

—Wheat: 59.1 million bushels, up 52 per cent from last year. The yield was expected to be 60 bushels per acre, up six from the 1973 record.

—Lemons: 22.5 million boxes, nearly 28 per cent above the previous record.

—Walnuts: 190,000 tons, 9 per cent above the 1973 record.

—Grapefruit: 6.1 million boxes, bettering the record of 5.8 million boxes in 1972-73.

The freestone peach forecast was 200,000 tons, down 12 per cent from last year. The clingstone crop was estimated at 760,000 tons, down 39,000 tons.

Wine probe

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state is examining the books of the privately run Wine Institute in San Francisco, the Department of Food and Agriculture says.

In an interview Thursday, Tim Wallace, director of the department, said, "I am not sure what they are going to find and that's the reason for the audit."

The audit began June 27.

"There's no suspicion of hanky panky or anything else. It's just in the spirit of open government," Wallace said.

The department routinely audits the state's advisory boards and board-related projects, Wallace said.

Harvey Rose, the state auditor general, said when his staff audited the Wine Advisory Board books he became curious about political contributions the institute made.

In 1973-74, the board paid $2.1 million to the institute under a contract for research and promotion of California wines, Rose said.

He said use of any of the money for political contributions would violate the state's marketing order.

Wallace said: "If they used public funds, that would be a different thing entirely. Even if it were legal, I wouldn't like the smell of it," Wallace said.

"Both Ernie Haas of the Wine Advisory Board, which disbanded itself June 30, and Bob Ivie of the Wine Institute have been cooperative and helpful during the audit," Wallace said.

When the 19-member Wine Advisory Board voted to go out of existence, the Wine Institute was given the job of carrying on its functions.

Board spokesmen at the time said the decision to disband the board had nothing to do with the audit by Rose's staff.

Textbook fuss

Many atoms; no Eves

BURLINGAME (AP) — Fifty years after the start of the Scopes Monkey Trial, Biblical creationists are fuming about the absence of Adam and Eve in California school textbooks.

A dissenting member of the state Board of Education, Eugene Ragle, assailed the "pseudo-scientific community" Thursday as the board approved science and social studies texts with only a few changes to accommodate the creationists.

New wording was ordered in a dozen proposed science and social studies texts which a board committee had judged too dogmatic in their treatment of evolution.

Another 17 social studies books were ordered altered because of portrayals of women and minorities, and 14 previously accepted books were dropped from the approved list for the same reason.

The books will be offered to school for grades kindergarten through eight in the fall of 1976.

Following board policy, none of the approved science books mentions creation at all. Some social studies books refer to it in discussing the history of beliefs, a requirement adopted two years ago in the compromise that kept the Bible out of science classes.

Ragle, who cast the only dissenting vote against the science texts, called the 1973 agreement "improper and virtually immoral."

Some members of San Diego's Creation Science Research Center, which had tried unsuccessfully to get a creation-oriented text series adopted, said they were considering legal action.

Removed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A miniskirted judge who kept a mechanical canary in her pink-trimmed chambers, heard cases holding a Chihuahua dog in her lap and once threatened a policeman with a ".38-caliber vasectomy" has been ousted for unjudicial conduct.

The California Supreme Court ruled Thursday that Municipal Court Judge Noel Cannon of Los Angeles County "had engaged in a course of conduct which had maligned her judicial office and clearly established her lack of temperament and ability to perform judicial functions in an even-handed manner."

Judge Cannon, 48, was appointed to the bench 12 years ago by then-Gov. Edmund G. Brown and was censured in 1967 by fellow jurists for "exhibitionist conduct." She may appeal to the court for reconsideration of the removal order, which is effective immediately.

The court said it acted on the unanimous recommendation of the Commission on Judicial Qualifications, which investigates accusations against judges alleged to be unfit or disabled.

The commission said that after a policeman cautioned Judge Cannon about excessive use of her automobile horn at an intersection, she told a bailiff: "Give me a gun. I am going to give him a .38-caliber vasectomy."

The commission also said she kept a mechanical singing canary in her chambers, which she had decorated in pink, and heard cases with her pet dog curled in her lap.

Judge Cannon, who was not available for comment after Thursday's ruling, had claimed there were mitigating circumstances, but the court said "there can be no mitigation for maliciously motivated unjudicial conduct."

Although she has been removed from the bench, Judge Cannon will be permitted to practice law because unjudicial conduct does not constitute moral turpitude, dishonesty or corruption.

Appointed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Ernest N. Lopez, a Riverside attorney, is Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s first judicial appointee.

Brown named Lopez judge of the Riverside County Superior Court Thursday.

Lopez, 45, is a Democrat. He fills the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Robert E. Dauber.

A native of San Bernardino, Lopez is a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

He received his BA degree from the University of California at Riverside in 1957, and his law degree from Boult Hall School of Law at the University of California in Berkeley in 1960.

Big award

MARTINEZ (AP) — A Girl Scout who lost both hands in a fiery head-on auto collision on a bridge has won a $1.9 million judgment from the state of California.

A Contra Costa County Superior Court jury voted the award Thursday to Dawn Harland, now 17, of Campbell, who was injured in the crash on Oct. 25, 1971, on the Benicia Bridge across the Carquinez Straits.

The jury had ruled that the state was liable both because there was no divider on the bridge and because the driver who caused the crash should not have been permitted a license.

Vigilantes

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — Six persons, including one woman, will stand trial in a case in which authorities said a man was abducted by a vigilante group and pushed to his death off a seaside cliff as punishment for stealing.

Municipal Court Judge George Perkovich ordered after a preliminary hearing Thursday that all six be arraigned July 23 in Superior Court here.

Facing trial on charges of murder, false imprisonment and kidnaping were Robert Whalley, 30, of Redondo Beach, Calif.; Gordon Brucker, 34, of Lawndale, Calif., and John Nemeth, 30, of Honolulu, Hawaii.

Whalley's 28-year-old ex-wife, Delores, will go on trial for false imprisonment and kidnaping along with Nemeth's brother, James, 18, of Lancaster, Calif., and Mark Crawford, 21, of Carson, Calif.

Deputy District Atty. Stephen Kay said Joseph Arce, 26, and two other men identified only as Mickey Zeller and Paul Roskolnikov, were abducted June 10 after a bracelet, two television sets and stereo equipment were stolen from Delores Whalley's apartment.

All three men were detained by their abductors until the stolen items were returned. Then, Kay said, Whalley, John Nemeth and Brucker allegedly drove Arce early June 11 to a 250-foot cliff near the Marineland aquatic amusement park on the Palos Verdes Peninsula and pushed him off.

Kung Fu'd

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor David Carradine, star of television's Kung Fu series, has been ordered to pay $20,000 to a woman he allegedly assaulted as he romped nude in his neighborhood.

"The court is of the opinion he was bombed out of his skull," said Superior Court Judge Francis X. Marnell after ruling Thursday that Carradine had assaulted Anrick Marie Kilty, 28.

The woman testified Carradine, naked, accosted her, called her a "witch" and tried to tear off her clothes last Sept. 15 near his Laurel Canyon home.

On the same day as the alleged assault, Carradine was arrested for malicious mischief for breaking into a neighbor's home and making a mess of the place.

VW shortage forcing U.S. dealers out of business

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Angry Southern California Volkswagen dealers say they are being forced out of business because they cannot get enough cars from VW's marketing agents in the United States.

Some 50 dealers were urged during a meeting recently to file a protest with the state's New Motor Vehicle Board and urge the agency to investigate their complaint.

"Half of you may be out of business by the end of the year if this continues," warned Europa Motors owner Manning Post, who is also a member of the state's Little Hoover Commission.

The New Motor Vehicle Board, which consists of four auto dealers and five public members, is authorized to intervene in disputes between manufacturers, their wholesale distributors and their retail dealers.

Theoretically, the board can order the state Department of Motor Vehicles to revoke a manufacturer's or distributor's license to do business in California if a franchise agreement is abused.

Arthur Railton, a vice president of Volkswagen of America, Inc, of Englewood Cliffs, N.J., conceded in a telephone interview Tuesday that there is a shortage of VW cars.

He said this is because of a changeover in production from the familiar Beetle models to the new VW Rabbit.

Railton said the shortage is expected to continue until late fall.

"We have nothing but sympathy for the dealers, but there is no way in the world that more cars can be produced by court order," he said.

State traffic toll jumps

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state's traffic death toll jumped nearly 15 per cent during the first half of 1975, says the California Highway Patrol.

The CHP reported Thursday that much of the increase occurred on county roads, rural highways and city streets while the toll on urban freeways declined slightly.

The six-month total was 1,976, up 257 or 14.95 per cent from the January-June period of 1974, said CHP Commissioner Glen Craig.

Of the increase, 166 deaths were on county roads and rural highways, and 95 were on city streets.

The decline on urban freeways from 115 to 111 deaths this year is "probably a reflection of reduced overall speeds," said Craig.

But the total is still less than the 2,320 during the first six months of 1973, when traffic volume was only slightly higher than during the same period of this year.

Craig said the lower figures for 1974 reflect reduced traffic due to gasoline shortages.

Rooster crowing mistrial

VISTA (AP) — Sitting in judgment of a dead bird is tougher than pulling hen's teeth, the jury decided, and a mistrial was declared Thursday in the case of George Ferguson's crowing roosters.

After five votes, the jury of nine women and three men was unable to break a 10-2 deadlock in their second day of deliberation.

A new trial was ordered Sept. 2 for Ferguson, charged with disturbing the peace.

The majority wanted Ferguson acquitted, said Max Blumeyer, the jury foreman, but he said "the major problem was the believability of witnesses on both sides." The roosters were unable to defend themselves since one is dead and the other a reported kidnap victim.

Ferguson, 47, said he was unhappy about the lack of a verdict four days after the trial began.

He said he is thinking about moving to Oregon. Since the criminal complaint was filed last December, his home in this rural farm area north of San Diego has been up for sale.

"There's no way I'm going to drop this case, though," Ferguson said. "I have to fight it.

"Where are people to go with their roosters if I don't?"

Refugees treated to circus

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — The Indochina refugees have been treated to a taste of what P.T. Barnum once called "the greatest show on earth."

Members of the Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey Circus put on a show Thursday for some 8,000 refugees in an open section between two clusters of green tents.

For nearly two hours, they entertained the Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees with funny clowns in garish costumes and painted faces, showgirls in sequined tights. There were also jugglers and even a couple of trick-performing poodles.

The refugees, almost equally divided between kids and adults, stood or squatted on the ground and watched it all.

"They loved it," said one Marine observer. "They just went bananas."

The highpoint of the show came when French daredevil Philippe Petit walked a tightrope 30 feet above the grass. But he was upstaged by an 11-year-old Vietnamese boy who was equally, if not even more fearless.

The youngster, Tran Quang Dung, eagerly accepted an invitation to cross the high wire on Petit's back. When the walk ended, he was all set to try walking it by himself.

And witnesses said he would've done just that had not Petit held him back.

Free cotton candy was passed out among the children and the kids were pulling on the feathery sweets long after the circus performers had packed up and left.

The performers drove more than 50 miles from San Diego, where they're playing this week, to put on the no-charge show for the refugees.

Girl Scouts to switch in sex conflict with church

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Some 1,800 Philadelphia-area Girl Scouts are switching to the Campfire Girls organization this month because of a sex education conflict between the scouts and the Roman Catholic Church.

Church officials urged the switch because they said they would have no control over the introduction of sex education programs into the scouting organization.

However, the Campfire Girls' sex education program "is in keeping with church teaching at this point," said Dorothy Lyons, executive director of the Philadelphia Campfire Girls organization.

She said the scout organization had no policy allowing the church to have some say on scout activities that Philadelphia Archdiocese officials felt had religious overtones, such as sex education.

She said that by fall, a total of 4,000 of the 6,000 Girl Scouts in the archdiocese would become Campfire Girls.

In proposing the switch last February, the Rev. Francis X. Schmidt, director of youth activities for the archdiocese, said the church was "not at odds with the humanistic goals of the national Girl Scouts organization. But we believe the Girl Scouts have moved more directly into an area which has a deep religious dimension."

Dorothy Fisher, executive director of the area Girl Scout program, said the scouts are not severing ties with archdiocese volunteers. She said the scouts are looking for new locations to hold activities when archdiocese facilities are no longer available.

U.S. vessel is raked by gunfire in Thailand gulf

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. cargo ship Gateway City was hit by gunfire in the Gulf of Thailand this week in the first such incident since the Cambodian seizure of the freighter Mayaguez two months ago.

U.S. officials minimized the incident, saying the gunfire came from small fishing-style vessels of unknown nationality. No attempt was made to board the Gateway City and none of its crew was wounded, they said.

Nonetheless, the U.S. government has sent out a warning to mariners.

Like the Mayaguez, the Gateway City is a container ship owned by the Sea-Land Corp. of Menlo Park, N.J. A company spokesman said the Gateway City has replaced the Mayaguez on a regular cargo run from Hong Kong.

Pentagon and State Department officials said the latest incident occurred Tuesday when the Gateway City was about 25 miles southeast of its destination, the Thai port of Sattahip.

This is about 200 miles from the scene of the Mayaguez' seizure by a Cambodian gunboat near the tiny island of Poulo Wai on May 12.

According to cables reaching Washington, two unidentified fishing-style boats opened fire with light weapons on the freighter and several rounds struck the ship's superstructure. Damage was described as superficial.

Officials said Capt. F. M. Hagerty, the Gateway's master, reported the incident to the U.S. Embassy in Bangkok after the ship docked at Sattahip. reported fighting over disputed islands in the gulf.

There is no evidence that the U.S. government has taken any special precautions to guard American shipping in the Gulf of Thailand since the Mayaguez and its crew were freed amid a U.S. Marine landing on a Cambodian island and American bombing of Cambodian mainland targets.

Pentagon sources said there were no U.S. Navy ships in the Gulf of Thailand when the Gateway City came under fire.

Pentagon sources speculated that the gunfire might have come from pirates known to operate in those waters. However, there has been considerable tension in the Gulf of Thailand, where Cambodian gunboats have seized Thai fishing craft and where at least one battle was fought last month between Thai and Cambodian navy vessels.

Thailand and Cambodia have been quarrelling over territorial boundaries and ownership of some offshore islands. The Cambodians and the Vietnamese also have been

Ford may boost auto prices 6%

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. indicated today that prices on 1976 cars and light trucks may go up 6 per cent — or about $335 a unit — over comparable 1975 vehicles.

The possible increase is in line with a 6 per cent increase hinted by General Motors Corp., the industry's acknowledged pricing leader.

A Ford official said dealers were notified this week that prices on new cars and light trucks for fleet purchasers would reflect a maximum 6 per cent increase over current prices.

Dealers also were notified of a maximum 7 per cent increase on heavy-duty tricks.

The price protection announcement is given dealers when a company promises to absorb any increase above the stated percentage.

The notification allows fleet purchasers — those buying 10 or more vehicles — to plan orders before official model introduction.

James G. Duff, a company comptroller, said final 1976 prices won't be established until new model introduction this fall. He said the price protection notification does not preclude a smaller or larger increase when prices are permanently set.

Duff said the price protection does not cover increases for changes in standard equipment, installation of new government-mandated emissions or safety equipment or destination charges — all of which could drive up the price of a new car.

However, industry analysts say the stated increase in the price protection notification provides a clear indication of how much more consumers can expect to pay for a new car this fall.

The price protection also is in line with an earlier estimate by company chairman Henry Ford II that car prices this fall likely will go up by about $300.

Ford's prediction was the upper limit of a 3 to 6 per cent increase mentioned by President Lee A. Iacocca in May.

Last year, Ford raised prices at the introduction of 1975 models by a record $540 or 12 per cent.

GM, which controls half the domestic market, confirmed earlier this week that it issued a 6 per cent price protection letter to dealers concerning fleet sales.

It was the first time GM has issued a price protection on its cars. Ford hasn't issued one since the late 1960s. Analysts said the latest moves are due to competitive pressures.

Chrysler Corp. has not issued a price protection notice for 1976 models. However, company officials have indicated they likely will raise prices around 5 per cent, or about $250 a car.

Industry-wide price increases last fall average a record 10 per cent or $450, and followed increase of some $500 during the 1974 model year.

TYPICAL CAGNEY POSE

With a characteristic gesture, actor James Cagney welcomes visitors to his 500-acre farm in Stanfordville, N.Y. Cagney, who divides his time between his Duchess County farm and his home in Beverly Hills, has kept out of the public eye since 1961.

Sirica lops off Barker sentence

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica ruled today that Bernard L. Barker need not serve the remaining five months of his jail term for the original Watergate break-in.

Sirica also reduced to "time served" the jail terms of three others in the original Watergate sentencing.

But Eugenio R. Martinez, Frank Sturgis and Virgilio Gonzalez had all been paroled before Sirica acted.

All four men had lost attempts to appeal their convictions in the Supreme Court.

Barker had pleaded guilty for his part in the break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters June 17, 1972.

Sirica initially sentenced him to 18 months to 6 years and until today he had actually spent a year and 19 days in the prison.

The effect of Sirica's order is to lop off the five remaining months of the former Miami real estate man's minimum sentence.

Barker had been free pending the outcome of his appeals on the original conviction.

Among the original Watergate team of burglars, only E. Howard Hunt Jr. and G. Gordon Liddy remain behind bars.

James W. McCord Jr., a retired CIA security specialist and a former official of the 1972 Nixon reelection committee, was also ordered released by Sirica on May 29.

Barker, Martinez and Gonzales were also convicted in the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. U.S. District Judge Gerhart A. Gesell sentenced them to prison terms paralleling their penalties for the Watergate break-in.

$5 million bail set in dope smuggling

NEW YORK (AP) — An alleged Corsican dope czar, accused of conspiring to smuggle "tons" of heroin worth as much as $2 billion into this country, was held today in an unprecedented $5 million bail shortly after he was flown here from Spain.

Brooklyn U.S. District Court Judge Jacob Mishler set the high bail at the request of Asst. U.S. Atty. Bernard Fried and scheduled arraignment for July 18. The suspect, Francois "Marcello" Rossi, 36, faces 200 years in prison and a $25,000 fine if convicted on charges leveled in two indictments.

Authorities said the bail set for Rossi, who reportedly is wanted in France for murder, was the largest ever decreed in Brooklyn federal court. They said they were unaware of anyone anywhere ever being held on more bail.

Kissinger, Gromyko end talks; progress made

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko wound up nuclear arms talks today. Gromyko called the talks "constructive," and Kissinger said they had made progress in narrowing their differences.

"We will work earnestly and with some optimism" toward completing a 10-year pact, Kissinger told newsmen before flying to Bonn for critical Middle East talks with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

Gromyko agreed that "the exchange of views on that subject was constructive" and hinted that the Soviet Union may agree to on-site inspection of its nuclear testing.

He said Moscow believes "national means of verification are quite adequate," but added: "Of course other countries have their own considerations in this regard."

The United States has consistently pressed for on-site inspection and has been rebuffed by the Soviet Union. Privately a senior American official told newsmen that the Soviets might now be ready to agree so far as assuring compliance with an understanding that underground nuclear weapons tests be restricted to certain areas and not to exceed 150 kilotons.

City boy Cagney turns farmer in search for more open space

STANFORDVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — About 200 persons participating in a local Chamber of Commerce's annual tour of area farms had a pleasant surprise earlier this week. Their host at one of the farms turned out to be retired movie star James Cagney.

"We were just trying to move a 125-year-old outhouse that was waiting for love and attention," Cagney said after emerging from his barn to greet his visitors Wednesday.

The visitors had been informed that they would meet Cagney just seconds before they turned into his driveway. Cagney laughed as he stepped before the microphone which had been set up.

He reminisced about his 31-year movie career. When asked if he ever watched himself on the late shows, he responded in mock seriousness, "Never. When I do, I see the great, enormous holes we made."

"Those things were made in 15 to 18 days," he explained. "There was no such thing as standing around and thinking it over."

He recalled rehearsing a scene for "Picture Snatchers," a movie directed by the late Lloyd Bacon.

"We played the scene," Cagney said, "and then I heard Bacon say 'Print!'"

"I ws rehearsing," Cagney told the director, but Bacon simply motioned him on to the next sequence.

Cagney sported a wide-brimmed hat and riding boots Wednesday. His measured gait was unlike the man who hoofed it up in "Yankee Doodle Dandy," for which he won an Academy Award. Cagney has generally shunned public appearances since 1961, when he retired after his performance in Billy Wilder's comedy, "One, Two, Three."

Cagney spends half the year at his Dutchess County home here and the other half in Beverly Hills, Calif. He said he searched for a country home in New York State for 40 years before he came upon the 500-acre farm here.

"My wife thought this city boy would take her away from the farm," he joked, referring to his wife of 50 years, Frances.

He told of an earlier, unsuccessful attempt to find a suitable location in New York and his disappointment at being recognized by a resident. "Who expected to meet anybody in Roscoe, New York who had ever seen a movie," he said.

Cagney moved here from Martha's Vineyard in Massachusetts where he had led a fight to prevent an airfield from being established on a tiny island.

He said the population growth of that area led him to search for open space elsewhere. Cagney said his move to Dutchess County was influenced by his fellow actor and friend Robert Montgomery, a native of Beacon who had property nearby.

Innocent by insanity is slaying ruling

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A woman has been found innocent by reason of insanity in the bludgeon and shooting death of a pregnant woman whose infant was taken from her womb during the slaying.

Winifred Ransom, 37, was sentenced Thursday by Common Pleas Court Judge Juanita Kidd Stout to an indeterminate term in the Philadelphia State Hospital at Byberry.

Mrs. Ransom admitted performing the crude Caesarean section on Margaret Sweeney, 26, of Philadelphia and killing her with a hatchet and two shots in the head from a .32-caliber revolver. The premature baby survived and lives with her grandfather, William Griffith of Nesco, N.J.

Psychologist Jan Grossman testified in the nonjury trial that Mrs. Ransom was driven by a psychotic delusion triggered by her inability to have children.

Ex-presidential aide was link with CIA?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former presidential aide Alexander Butterfield, who revealed the existence of former President Nixon's taping system, was a contact officer for the Central Intelligence Agency while he served in the White House, a former CIA liaison officer for the Air Force said today.

Shortly after the liaison officer, retired Col. L. Fletcher Prouty, made the disclosure on television, an informed source said Prouty had given the information to the House intelligence committee in recent days.

Prouty was called to appear before committee investigators again today.

Butterfield gained national prominence nearly two years ago when he disclosed to Senate Watergate investigators the existence of then-President Richard M. Nixon's White House tape recording system.

Tapes from the system, which recorded Nixon's conversations with his top aides, were instrumental in forcing his resignation on Aug. 9, 1974.

In an interview on the CBS-TV "Morning News," Prouty said he had "no doubt about Butterfield's employment by the CIA.

NBC News said it also had learned of Butterfield's CIA connections.

A congressional source told The Associated Press that Prouty disclosed Butterfield's CIA role to investigators for the House intelligence committee. The committee is investigating the CIA and other intelligence agencies.

But the source said the investigators have no documentary evidence to support Prouty's assertion.

Butterfield, who was named head of the Federal Aviation administration after he left the White House, was not available for comment.

But his wife called Prouty's description of her husband's role "absolutely false ... (a) ludicrous allegation." She added: "It would be absolutely laughable ..."

Prouty's comments came just one day after CIA Director William E. Colby denied as "outrageous nonsense" earlier statements by Reps. Robert W. Kasten, R-Wis., and Ronald V. Dellums, D-Calif., that there was evidence of CIA penetration of the White House, the Office of Management and Budget and the treasury and commerce departments.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate intelligence committee, said Thursday his panel planned to investigate the allegations of CIA penetration in the White House and elsewhere.

Less demand drops Indo oil output

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Reduced consumption in Japan and on the West Coast of the United States cut Indonesian oil production in March to 27 per cent of capacity, Secretary-General Sutarjo Sigit of the mining department has reported.

Sigit said daily production in March was 1.19 million barrels, or 18 per cent less than the 1974 daily average of 1.46 million barrels. Indonesia is capable of producing 1.65 million barrels daily, he said.

A human being, or not?

Fetus murders may lead to guidelines

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Writer

Two murder cases, one in Chicago and one in Camden, N.J., involve the fatal shooting of fetuses and may provide some legal guidelines in the continuing struggle to define when a fetus becomes a human being.

Case 1 involves Melvin Morgan, 21, who is accused of firing shots through a closed apartment door on Jan. 20, striking Bessie Connors, 24, who was 8½ months pregnant. The mother lived but her unborn daughter had been shot in the abdomen and was dead when removed by Caesarian section. Morgan was arrested in Louisiana and returned to Chicago last week for trial Sept. 16.

Case 2 involves Winfield Anderson, 24, now on trial accused of two counts of homicide in the March 9 shooting of Nikki Spearman, 22, who was 7½ months pregnant. She subsequently gave birth to twin fetuses that died within hours.

Legal, medical and religious groups are closely following the cases in which the issue is when the victims became "persons." The outcome could affect abortion laws.

In the Chicago case, a grand jury first indicted Morgan on charges of aggravated battery and attempted murder even though the coroner said the fetus could have lived if it had been delivered at that stage of pregnancy. The decision was based on a 1956 Illinois Supreme Court ruling that said for a child to be a homicide victim, it must already have been separated from its mother.

The Illinois Right to Life Committee and the state attorney's office later reviewed the charge from the angle of a more recent decision by the state's high court in a civil case that held a fetus is a person.

A grand jury then indicted Morgan for murder.

"We believe civil law and criminal law are in accordance and the ultimate humanity of an unborn child will be established in this case," Joseph Scheidler, executive director of the Illinois Right to Life Committee said Thursday.

"This is a case of a wanted child. It is not an abortion case, but legal observers, doctors and others will watch it with interest. It is possible a conviction could set legal precedent for indicting late-term abortionists. We expect a conviction and hope to establish that the killing of a human being, born or unborn, is a crime."

A spokesman for the Illinois Citizens for Medical Control of Abortion, a proabortion group, has said that Illinois legal precedent forbids a murder charge unless the victim is "a person in being which has been separated from the mother.

"If Morgan indeed is the right defendant, then it is sad that the state's attorney's office jeopardized a legitimate case in order to allow the Illinois Right to Life Committee to make an intellectual or philosphical point," he said.

An assistant state's attorney said there is no abortion issue in the Chicago case. It's simply that "the propective mother was criminally deprived of her right and desire to bear her child — a killing was administered by violent crime," he said.

Morgan, held in Cook County Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond, is represented by public defender Brian Silverman who says: "I have a strategic decision to make. There are some intriguing legal questions all through the case."

But, he said, "to me the more relevant question is can the state prove Morgan was the one who fired the shots through the closed door in the first place. No one saw him do it."

At issue is whether the victims were persons as defined by New Jersey law. The defense contends they were "non-persons," and if so the indictment would have to be dismissed.

Camden County Court Judge Leon A. Wingate said he might take the issue of the infant's legal status away from the jury and make the determination himself.

Another recent case involving the definition of a "person" was that of Dr. Kenneth C. Edelin, a physician convicted of manslaughter in the death of a fetus he aborted. The conviction is being appealed.

The defense argued that the fetus was not a child because it "never drew a breath outside the body of its mother," thus it was never born, never became a human being and thus couldn't be killed.

The prosecution, noting that the abortion procedure was the same as that used for delivery, contended the fetus was "born" when taken from the womb and once on its "swn systems" was a human being.

The judge, in his instructions to the jury, noted that "a fetus is not a person and not a subject for an indictment for manslaughter." To be a person, he said it had to be born — removed from the mother's body.

Sex discrimination charge hurled at Army

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recently issued Army regulations bar women enlistees from jobs such as chaplain's assistant, photographer and veterinary assistant, Rep. Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., has charged.

"While business and government are becoming increasingly enlightened about employing women in high-level positions, the Army by this action in closing many highly technical positions to women shows a backwoods mentality," Wilson said Wednesday.

Wilson, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said other areas closed to women in the Army include radio operator, radar repair, microwave repair, Nike-Hercules fire control mechanic, camera repair, aircraft turbine engine repair, optical lab specialist, medical supply, surveyor, topographer and offset press operator.

"In 1974, 18 per cent of the Army's enlistments were Category 4 (lowest mental aptitude) and none of these 18 per cent were women," Wilson said. "Of course, to be admitted to the military, women must be high school graduates and meet higher qualification standards.

"Apparently the Army prefers quantity to quality in filling these highly skilled positions. It is, in effect, keeping women in their traditional female typographical ghetto," he said.

A 'frightening' sight

Survives month-long fight against plague

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — "You've never seen anything more frightening in your life. I mean, his whole body was black. He was as sick as any human could be and still live."

Dr. James Favata reflected on the month-long struggle to save 23-year-old Ralph Fulp from bubonic plague, an ordeal Favata described as a "nightmare for everyone."

He said Fulp, of Chino Valley in north central Arizona, will live but will lose parts of most fingers and some toes.

Of seven plague cases confirmed nationwide this year, the Arizona Health Department says five occurred in Arizona, most on the Navajo Indian Reservation in northern Arizona. All have been nonfatal.

The disease is usually transmitted by fleas.

In an interview this week, Favata recalled the morning of June 14 when Fulp struggled into his office.

"I told his mother then that if he had been on the reservation or in that area, I would say he had the plague," Favata said. "But the idea seemed so outlandish. The plague was something I read about in medical textbooks 15 years ago. I never in my wildest dreams thought I would be treating it. The case was a nightmare — for him, for his parents, for me, for everyone."

Hospital tests confirmed Fulp had the plague.

"By Sunday, he started to fail rapidly and went into severe shock," the doctor said. "He became extremely short of breath and his blood pressure fell to nothing."

According to medical journals, the last U.S. outbreak of the plague occurred in Los Angeles in 1924-25. Of 33 persons who died. Last May, a 17-month-old girl died of the plague north of L.A.

6 in vigilante death ordered to stand trial

TORRANCE (AP) — Six persons have been ordered to stand trial in the so-called vigilante death of a Gardena man pushed off a seashore cliff for allegedly burglarizing a home.

After a preliminary hearing Wednesday in South Bay Municipal Court, Robert Whalley, 30, of Redondo Beach, Gordon Brucker, 34, of Lawndale, and John Nemeth, 30, of Honolulu, Hawaii, were bound over for trial for murder, three counts of false imprisonment and three counts of kidnaping.

In addition, Whalley faces a charge of assault with intent to commit great bodily injury, and Brucker is charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Whalley's former wife, Delores Whalley, 28, from whom the two television sets, a bracelet and a stereophonic receiver unit were taken, was ordered held on three counts each of false imprisonment and kidnaping.

Nemeth's brother, James, 18, of Lancaster, and Mark Crawford, 21, of Carson, were charged with two counts of kidnaping and a count of false imprisonment. Judge George Perkovich ordered them arraigned July 23 in Torrance Superior Court.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Stephen Kay said the episode began June 10 when the victim, Joseph Arce, 26, and a man identified as Mickey Zeller allegedly burglarized Delores Whalley's apartment in Lawndale.

Kay said the defendants later allegedly kidnaped Arce, Zeller and a third man, Paul Roskolnikov, who they believed had bought the color television set, and held them until all the items were returned.

The other two men were released, Kay said, and Whalley, the older Nemeth and Brucker took Arce to a 250-foot high cliff on the Palos Verdes Peninsula about midnight June 11 and shoved him off.

Two other persons, Gary Aman, 18, of El Segundo, and Paula Boyer, 22, of Redondo Beach, were granted immunity in return for their testimony at a preliminary hearing.

A ninth person, Darryl Fannin, 27, of Lawndale, pleaded guilty to a charge of false imprisonment and will be sentenced Aug. 15.

Biggest in California

Cocaine ring smashed

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Authorities in the United States, Mexico and Canada were hunting more persons today in their investigation of a marijuana and cocaine smuggling ring described as the largest to be cracked to date.

The federal Drug Enforcement Administration said Wednesday that the ring had been crushed with the arrest of eight persons in California and 17 in Mexico.

Nine other persons were still being sought by DEA agents in California and Mexican authorities said they expected more arrests in Mexico and in Montreal, Canada.

The agency declined to specify how much money and narcotics were involved, but said the group slipped multi-kilo amounts of cocaine into the U.S. each month.

Its illegal shipments reached as far as Maine and Florida, the agency said.

The DEA described the ring as a Latin American connection, with cocaine being flown by private plane from Columbia and dropped in remote areas of Mexico. From there, it would be smuggled across the border into San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco for distribution throughout the U.S., investigators said.

Mexican federal police last week seized 220 pounds of hugh-grade cocaine said to belong to the organization. It was valued at $46.5 million — the largest single seizure of cocaine ever, they said.

They also smashed a cocaine laboratory in Queretaro, 150 miles north of Mexico City in a joint operation with DEA.

Marijuana also reached the United States through this pipeline, concealed in tanker trucks, cars and packages hidden on the bodies of couriers, the DEA said.

Standard Oil blames President

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Standard Oil of California blames this month's two-cent-a-gallon increase in gasoline prices on President Ford, and says its near-record profits are still too low to meet oil exploration costs.

Executive Secretary Don Maytum and Assitant General Manager Bob Retig defended the gasoline price hikes as necessary in the face of Ford's $2 tax on every barrel of crude oil imported into the United States.

Rettig said the company needs one barrel of imported oil for every barrel of domestically produced oil to meet demand.

When asked why the consumer was bearing the full cost of the tax when the company is realizing near-record profits, Maytum said profits remain too low to meet the huge costs of exploration and development of new petroleum sources.

CHRISTIAN HOTLINE

Dear Jo:

My son is heavily addicted to drugs. We have tried just about everything. What do you suggest?

—H.B.M.

Dear H. B. M.:

I don't merely suggest, I fairly shout! "Take him to Jesus!" I honestly do not have faith in anything or anyone else. Jesus is vitally interested in, and has compassion for, drug addicts for He, too, was tempted with drugs while His pain-racked body hung on the cross. He knows what your son is going through — how his tortured body screams for relief. He also understands the heartache that you bear, too. But praise God, there is help — there is deliverance! Jesus was victorious at the cross over all drug addiction and now your son can claim his own healing by accepting Jesus as his Lord and Savior. Isa. 53:5 tells us, "He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities . . . and with His stripes we are healed!" Oh, my friend, bring your boy to Jesus. He can lift up that broken spirit while He heals that sick body. I know, for He healed my son.

FRED FONATANA
Trash his business

Trash collector has their trust

Tell-tale signs in people's garbage

SAN FRANCISCO (AP — Fred Fontana says people trust their garbage man more than most professions because his job makes him "practically part of every customer's family."

"We know from the garbage when there's been a wedding, a birth, when people are unhappy and drinking too much, or when there's a funeral," Fontana, himself a garbage collector for 35 years, said in a recent interview. "We see it in the bouquets, the empty bottles of booze, the soiled diapers and the old dry wreaths."

Fontana, 51, said the customers on his route in the city's Haight-Ashbury district have so much confidence in him that more than 300 of them have given him private keys to let himself into their homes and businesses to fetch the trash when no one's around.

He said he wasn't surprised that a recent Louis Harris poll showed the public gave a higher confidence rating to garbage men than to such high-paid professionals as businessmen and doctors.

"Guys like me do something that's basic and needed," Fontana said. "With these other guys, professors and politicians and doctors, maybe the public isn't sure of what they're doing for all that money.

"With us, they know exactly what they're getting," he said.

Fontana, who subcontracts from the city's private scavenger company to service about 2,000 customers, said he has worked the same route since breaking into the business in 1940 with the help of his father and uncle — both garbage collectors, too.

"No wonder people have faith in guys like us," said Fontana, who works six days a week and holidays to earn about $18,000 a year.

He said he's seen history pass before his eyes, as the endless heaps of ashes from days when wood and coal were burned for heat gave way to the era of plastic wrap and disposable beverage bottles.

"The most unusual thing I've ever found in the garbage were hippies actually sleeping there," said Fontana, who survived the era of the Haight-Ashbury flower children.

One change he said he welcomes is replacement of 60-pound steel cans with aluminum ones that weigh only 20 pounds.

Asked if he'd like to see his daughter marry a garbage man, Fontana said he didn't have a daughter, but added:

"I wouldn't mind if a son of mine married a woman who was in garbage. Just wait, it won't be long before women get into this profession. Why not? It's proud work."

GM to unveil minicar answer to imports

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors will unveil its new fuel-efficient Chevette minicar this fall in a major effort to stymie importers' gains in the American small car market.

GM Chairman Thomas Murphy confirmed the plans in an interview with The Associated Press on Wednesday.

The Chevette represents the first attempt in modern times by a domestic company to vie for sales in the minicar segment of the market, now dominated by imports. The hot-selling foreign cars have attracted buyers worried about rising gasoline prices.

Murphy said he hoped the Chevette will dispel myths about the superior economy and craftmanship of foreign cars. With the new car, he said, "anybody who comes in the market will see we have greater value and just as good fuel capability as any of the imports in the same class."

The Chevette, which will be the smallest car built in the United States, will be offered by the firm's Chevrolet Division, he said.

It was the first time GM has said what the car would be called, which division would market it and when it would be introduced.

Murphy predicted the new car would help limit import sales to a 15 or 16 per cent share of the domestic market for the year. Imports held a record 20 per cent share through the first half of 1975.

The Chevette currently is undergoing federal tests, so official fuel economy figures are not available. But industry sources say the car should get up to 40 miles per gallon in highway driving, comparable to the most fuel-efficient imports.

Murphy declined to say whether the Chevette would be priced below GM's subcompact Vega, the smallest car now sold by the firm. The Vega sells for about $2,800.

The Chevette will be 17 inches shorter and 400 pounds lighter than the Vega but roomier on the inside than the GM subcompact, which seats four adults.

The development of the Chevette is part of GM's $3 billion, three-year program to scale down the size of its cars so its average product will burn 40 per cent less gasoline by 1980.

All U.S. auto companies are committed to reaching that goal as part of a national energy conservation program.

Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. also are developing their own domestic minicars, but are not expected to enter the market before 1978 at the earliest.

Speech therapy for Viet

DENVER (AP) — During one of the final battles near Saigon earlier this year, South Vietnamese Army Capt. Nguyen Van Ruc was wounded and doctors amputated a leg.

A short time later, Ruc began stuttering, a result of the terrors of war and the emotional trauma of losing his leg.

Now a refugee living in a Catholic mission near Tucson, Ariz., Ruc, 28, is having trouble adjusting to life in the United States. Unable to talk, he's having difficulty making his way through the bureaucratic red tape faced by all refugees. And, he doesn't speak English.

The former captain arrived at the Colorado Hearing and Speech Center this week to begin a therapy program in hopes of overcoming the problem.

"This is an unusual case because we will be working with a person who speaks no English," said Tom Buelter, executive director of the center.

"We'll have to teach him to speak properly, without stuttering, through an interpreter," Buelter explained. "We don't think anything like this has ever been attempted before."

Basically, Buelter said, the therapy will be aimed at teaching Ruc to learn to breathe properly for correct speech. Buelter says the system has proven about 80 per cent effective in the past, and he's hopeful Ruc's problem will be over at the end of a week of intensive therapy.

Low income jobless disparity

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A state survey uncovered substantially higher unemployment figures for low-income areas than official federal statistics showed, state officials said today.

Mario Obledo, secretary of health and welfare, said the survey covered over 2,000 homes in Monterey and San Benito counties while federal surveys in the same counties usually only use 50 families.

"With the inclusion of so-called discouraged workers who have given up trying to find a job, the unemployment rate for males in target areas of Monterey County registered 19 per cent and in San Benito 24 per cent, Obledo said.

Model making

One of the oldest crafts is model making. Museums have models of boats, household articles and tools made by ancient peoples more than 6,000 years ago. Today model making is a hobby for many people.

New site studied for Claremont post office

The new U.S. post office might not be built at Arrow Highway and Bucknell Avenue in Claremont, after all.

City Manager Norman King informed the Claremont City Council Tuesday night that post office officials have indicated that a new site analysis procedure for a post office site has been started.

Furthermore, "they intend to follow this procedure to final completion," King said.

King explained that the site the post office staff has looked at is the lemon packing house west of Indian Hill Boulevard between the railroad tracks.

King recommended that the city should consider carefully the merits of having the city Redevelopment Agency acquire some or all of the land necessary for the post office on a reimbursement or leaseback basis if such action would lead to a location of the post office in an area determined in the best interest of the city.

The present post office is at Harvard Avenue and Second Street.

Two representatives of the U.S. Postal Service told the council in May 1974 that their Arrow Highway-Bucknell Avenue site would be more economical than the city's preferred Bonita-Berkeley avenues site, but they're willing to look at alternate locations.

A representative explained that the Postal Service has been planning a new post office in Claremont since 1967.

The Claremont Chamber of Commerce has also backed the council's choice of Bonita-Berkeley avenues.

At that time, Councilwoman Claire McDonald had suggested the lemon packing house site as a compromise site.

In other actions, the council requested that Supervisor Peter Schabarum do whatever is necessary to get Claremont a toll-free telephone line for up-to-date air pollution information from the Air Pollution Control District.

At present, the city and the school district must place long distance calls to the APCD.

San Bernardino County provides a toll-free line for Upland, Montclair and other West End cities.

The council denied a request by the Rev. G. C. Kennedy who asked that the city waive a requirement that the Foothill Baptist Church pay for a street line in front of the church at 1364 Towne Ave.

The council decided to allow the church to post a bond for a two-year period.

It is city policy to phase out temporary street lights on wooden Edison poles by requiring permanent lights on concrete city poles as development occurs.

Mr. Kennedy unsuccessfully attempted to convince the council that a street light was unnecessary because "at night I can read the small print of the want ads in the Progress-Bulletin," from the present lights.

No layoffs seen in Montclair

The City of Montclair will retain all its employes hired under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act through June 30, 1976.

Mike Milhiser, administrative assistant, reported to the City Council Monday that the carryover from the 1974-75 budget and the allocation for 1975-76 will eliminate any possibility of lay-off for the CETA workers throughout the city services program.

The act provides federal funds to cities for hiring the unemployed in public service departments. It is part of the national program to reduce the unemployment rate and money appropriated to cities can only be used for hiring purposes, not applied to actual program or material.

The City of Montclair employs 39 persons in administrative services, public works, the police and fire departments. Two other persons work for the Ontario-Montclair School District with funds provided from the city's CETA allocation.

The carryover from the previous fiscal year totaled $130,500, Milhiser said. The city has been informed that it will receive $270,000 for 1975-76.

Milhiser asked the council to appropriate not more than $7,500 from the contingency account for uniforms, safety shoes and miscellaneous equipment, and limited training of CETA employes at other facilities. This training will provide skills to gain employment elsewhere when the federal money to cities for these employes stops, Milhiser explained.

The portion of the $7,500 not used for these purposes will be returned to the contingency account.

Newport trip scheduled

The Pomona Park and Recreation Departments will sponsor a youth trip to Newport Dunes on Thursday.

The trip is for boys and girls 8 to 12 and will cost $2.75 per person, which includes transportation, admission, insurance and supervision.

Youths should bring a swim suit, towel and lunch or lunch money.

The bus for the trip will leave Ganesha Park at 10 a.m. and return at 5 p.m.

Reservations may be made at the Park and Recreation Departments office at Pomona City Hall or local recreation center. Reservations should be made by today.

U.S. Forest planes based at OIA for fire season

READY FOR DUTY

This giant C 119 air tanker stands ready for fire duty at Ontario International Airport. It can carry 2,000 pounds of chemical retardants to dump on forest fires. Standing under its wing are the flight crew, Walter Darran, pilot, Robert Buc, co-pilot, Larry Nadey, mechanic, and Richard Delacy, air service manager of the U. S. Forest Service.

LEAD PLANE BASE

Louis Rossi, left, pilot, and Glenn Reynolds, air management officer of the U. S. Forest Service "lead plane" base at Ontario International Airport discuss the forest fire season while standing in front of a Beach Bason twin engine plane.

Two types of aircraft used

By L.T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

When major fires erupt in national forests in Southern California, initial attention may be directed toward Ontario International Airport.

That's where firefighters can look for their air support.

During the fire season, the U. S. Forest Service has based at Ontario small "lead" planes to assist ground crews and direct air tankers making chemical drops, and the larger air tankers with giant mixing vats and a network of loading hoses.

Although the two types of aircraft are kept at separate areas of the airport, their operations quickly merge once they are assigned to forest fires.

The lead plane facility, located east of the airport's main terminal building, has several small planes plus 13 forest service personnel. Its primary mission is to assess the overall extent of fires and report to ground crews their location and movement.

When the air tankers are assigned, the pilot then directs the air tanker crews in their drop approaches.

Glenn Reynolds, the air management officer, said the Ontario base primarily serves the San Bernardino, Angeles and Cleveland national forests but its planes can also be sent to other areas when needed.

These planes are dispatched from the South Zone dispatch center in Arcadia.

"Once a lead plane pilot reaches a fire, he will determine the needs and give that information to a ground fire boss, who will then call in the air tankers," he added.

At present, the Ontario base has only one lead plane pilot assigned. A second is expected to be assigned soon. The pilots will be on duty daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Because of various safety factors, the lead planes are used only during daylight hours.

The forest service is presently changing from single-engine to twin-engine planes for its "lead" work, said Reynolds. There are now two of these planes based at Ontario.

The air tanker base, located near the Air National Guard, has a C 119 assigned. But should a major fire erupt, then other air tankers could be sent here.

"Within an hour's time, we could have eight or nine tankers sent here from other bases," said Richard Delacy, air service manager.

The C 119 tanker assigned at Ontario has been on duty since June 15. "We expect it to remain through Dec. 1 if it rains and next January if it doesn't," he added.

The Ontario base also serves the Angeles, San Bernardino and Cleveland national forests and also assists the California Division of Forestry in Riverside County.

The C 119, a converted military cargo plane, can carry 2,000 gallons of chemical retardants. The plane recently had a jet engine installed to give more power and better flight performance, said Delacy.

Similar tanker bases are located in Ramona, Lancaster, Porterville, Fresno, Paso Robles and Hemet. "We move these air tankers around as they are needed," he explained. "The C 119 at Ontario has gone as far as Oregon and Arizona."

Although the fire flights are confined to daylight hours, the crew may fly at night to other bases where needed.

The Ontario base now has six persons assigned. But this can be expanded during major fires.

Managers of both operations stressed that plane departures are directed to the south over low populated areas. This is done to lessen the noise impact over homes and businesses.

Man accused of beating horse

A Bassett man was arrested Thursday afternoon after allegedly beating a horse for 20 minutes at his ranch with a bullwhip, sheriff's deputies reported.

The man, Morris Curtis, 55, was arrested at his residence at 829 S. Fifth Ave., the location of the incident.

A neighbor, Royal Ekstrand, 57, said he called sheriff's deputies after Morris had refused to stop beating the horse — a roan 4-year-old. Deputies summoned Randy Mundane, a county animal regulation officer at the Baldwin Park shelter, who examined the horse. He reported finding blood in its mouth, a deep cut on its flank and numerous other cuts. Ekstrand then placed Morris under citizen's arrest on a cruelty-to-animals charge and Mundane impounded the horse.

Deputies said that when they arrived at the ranch and asked to see the horse, Morris stated it had fallen and became tangled in the reins.

San Dimas man succumbs in car

A 49-year-old San Dimas man collapsed and died in his car parked outside his house Thursday morning, sheriff's deputies said.

The victim, Louis M. Smith, 49, 1255 Camino Del Sur, apparently died of a heart attack, deputies said, but an autopsy was ordered.

Smith had gone to his car to leave for a morning golf date when he collapsed. The body was discovered Thursday evening when Smith's wife returned home.

Investivators said that 180-degree heat inside the closed car had resulted in burns on the body and it was suspected that he had been the victim of foul play. That theory was abandoned after detectives from the homicide division investigated the incident.

United Way's board members selected

United Way's Region 2 board members who guide the planning, agency relations, budgeting and fund-raising effort in the San Gabriel and Pomona valleys, have been announced by the regional board chairman, Wendell B. Sell, El Monte.

Messler, Pasadena.

Stanley Hahn, Pasadena attorney, will serve as board secretary and William H. Pickering, director at Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, will serve as associate chairman.

Orrin K. Earl, board chairman at O. K. Earl Corp., Pasadena, will serve as administration and finance chairman and Robert R. Huffman, chairman of California bicycle division of Huffman Manufacturing Co., Azusa, is agency relations chairman.

Shots fired on Ontario woman, girl

A man "hanging out of a car" fired shots at random at an Ontario woman and her daughter as they worked in the backyard of their home early Thursday police said.

Violet Smith, 36, told officers two men drove by her residence at 1441 W. Phillips St. at 8:35 a.m., and fired at least four shots. The victim and her daughter Wandra, 15, dropped to their knees as the shots whizzed overhead. They were not injured.

The men, driving a maroon car, were described as male Caucasians.

Police indicated a residence in back of Mrs. Smith's had been burglarized recently and the woman had spotted a possible suspect in an orchard, at the time.

Two colleges get bilingual teaching grants

Two area colleges have received $760,120 in federal grants to conduct bilingual educational programs, said Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist.

These are Cal Poly, $717,320, and La Verne College, $42,800.

"The grants from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare are for the development and operation of new programs to meet the special educational needs of children, 3 to 18, who have limited English-speaking ability and who come from homes where English is not the dominant language," said Lloyd.

Safety class scheduled

A hunter safety class will be held Saturday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Boy Scout house at Fourth Street and Grove Avenue, Ontario.

The program is sponsored by the Ontario recreation department. The charge is $4 per person, with Boy Scouts in uniform admitted for $3. Scouts can complete work for their rifle and shotgun and archery merit badges at no extra cost.

New charge studied for delinquent bills

The City of Upland is considering increases in charges for delinquent bill collection, meter changes and meter removal.

The city is also studying changes in the municipal code affecting the billing procedures for water, refuse and sewer fees.

In the new system, the city would mail out some bills on the first and some on the 15th of each month, rather than just on the first. This would reduce the bulge in payment collection and help the office operate in a more orderly fashion, according to City Manager Lee Travers.

Under the new code, bills would become delinquent 15 days after presentation, rather than on the 15th of the month as presently stated in the code.

The charges for collecting delinquent fees and the fees for meter turn-on and turn-off or removal need to be increased to meet present costs, Travers said.

It has been proposed that the fee for collecting a delinquent bill be raised from $2 to $6.

The present charge of turn-on and turn-off of meters is $3.50. This would be raised to $12. It is also proposed to change the cost for removing a meter from $5 to $12.

Travers said that after the proposed rate increases have been publicized and the public reaction has been heard, the Upland City Council will consider changing the municipal code.

CHP arrests help cut road deaths

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California Highway Patrol officials say the high number of drunken driving arrests helped cut down highway deaths over the Fourth of July weekend.

Officers arrested 1,603 drunken drivers during the three-day holiday, the CHP said Monday.

Two other key factors keeping the state death toll at 42 were heavy traffic and the 55-mile speed limit, the CHP said. Only two of the 42 victims were known to have been wearing seat belts.

"The traffic was heavy, and that's a factor that tends to hold down fatal accidents," said Deputy CHP Commissioner Alva Cooper. "Then there was the 55-mile limit, and we arrested a tremendous number of drunken drivers."

The arrest total was 100 above the number arrested during a comparable period last year.

TV magazine features space trip coverage

NBC's News' coverage of the U.S.-U.S.S.S.R. nine-day joint Apollo-Soyuz space mission, set for July 15 to 24, is the cover and cover close-up subject of TV Week magazine in Sunday's Progress Bulletin.

NBC News begins its television coverage on preflight activities with a report Tuesday at 5 p.m. with live pictures of the Russian crew at the launch pad.

John Chancellor and Jim Hartz are the reporters for the mission and will be joined by John Dancy in Moscow and Roy Neal in Houston.

Alan B. Shepherd Jr., a former astronaut, will serve as special on-the-air consultant for NBC news during the flight.

Cyclist hurt in crash

An Ontario youth suffered multiple injuries Thursday afternoon when two bikes collided as the riders were traveling south down Mt. Baldy Road near Mountain Avenue above Upland.

Haime Gomez, 14, of 345 N. Vine Ave., was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital for a broken collarbone, injured shoulder and multiple cuts and bruises. He was later released.

He and a friend, Kevin Weise, 14, of 1001 N. Elderberry Ave., Ontario, were riding together with Weise slightly ahead when Gomez came up on the left side and his bike pedal became caught in the other bike's wheel, said highway patrolmen.

This caused Gomez to be spilled from his bike and onto the asphalt roadway. The other youth escaped serious injury.

Arson suspect free of charges

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Charges have been dropped against a skid row pensioner accused of arson and murder in a hotel fire that claimed nine lives. Police said another man is being questioned.

John Joseph Newvine, 61, was arrested about an hour after fire raced through the three-story Pomona Hotel on Portland's skid row Monday night. He was charged with arson and murder.

Quadraplegic

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A quadraplegic cited for operating his motorized golf cart without a driver's license is under orders to get a special license.

Municipal Court Judge Leighton Hatch, sitting in traffic court Thursday, found Joel Duce, 20, guilty of driving without a license. But he gave Duce one year's probation on condition that he get a restricted license from the state Department of Motor Vehicles.

Duce is employed by a firm that specializes in vehicles for the disabled.

He was ticketed May 18 for driving without a license, and for driving an unregistered vehicle on a public street.

The judge found Duce innocent of failing to register the vehicle because, he said, the law is unclear on whether that type of vehicle should be registered.

We stilll look for the villains

When things go wrong in our economic life we tend to look for scapegoats. We blame the Arabs, big business, big labor, the government, speculators, politicians, and on through an endless list.

Quite easily we satisfy ourselves about their culpability and don't bother to search for deeper explanations, of which there are often quite a few. Remember the ubiquitous middleman and high food prices in 1974?

The middleman, presumably everyone who stood between the farmer and the consumer, was stealing money right out of our pockets, or at least we liked to say that. His greed became legend. He was ruining the country.

Well, now the middleman has been cleared, if it makes any difference at this late date. He was not to blame, said the Council on Wage and Price Stability, for the 12.2 per cent increase in food prices last year.

Instead, it said, higher world oil prices, the end of government price controls and rising wages, among other factors, contributed to the increase. There were no villains, said the council.

No villains? There have to be, you say. Well, perhaps there was one: You. Food bills are rising for many reasons, the council said, but one of them is the fact that Americans are eating at restaurants more often.

Even when Americans eat at home, the study showed, they tend to choose convenience foods, or foods that already have been partially prepared. Whereas we use our own labor when we prepare raw foods, we pay for somebody else's when the food comes processed.

The truth is, the council continued, pricing patterns between farmers and food marketers, or middlemen, haven't changed very much over the past half century. Forty per cent of the food bill goes to farmers, 60 per cent to processors, wholesalers and retailers.

With the villain theory removed, Americans are forced to look inward for their explanations. One of those explanations lies in rising expectations, which we have come to think of as our heritage.

Especially during the 1960s, Americans believed strongly that their lives would become better by the day. Higher wages, more luxuries and conveniences and comforts and better services were expected as a right.

The dream came true for many Americans and, rather than being satisfied, they seemed to aspire for even more. Human desires, said George Katona, a pioneer consumer scholar, are never satisfied.

But progress, even of this sort, doesn't take place in a straight line. Reality intruded in the form of bills to pay and rising taxes and recession and inflation. The adjustment was difficult.

Surveys now show that Americans aren't that cocky anymore about the future. Job security rather than constantly higher incomes are now sought by many workers. And on a different scale, Americans know now they are self-sufficient.

Still, the adjustment is difficult. We still look for villains. — John Cunniff, Associated Press.

Incumbents lose ballot positions

No longer will incumbent officials have the obvious advantage of having their names at the top of an election ballot. Nor will candidates be listed in alphabetical order.

The state Supreme Court has held unconstitutional the automatic listing of incumbents in the preferred positions. These election procedures violate the equal protection clause of the U.S. and California constitutions, the high court rules.

The basis for the court ruling was a case involving Renee Gould and Richard Palmer, candidates in a Santa Monica city council election in 1973.

The local election ordinance provided the names of city council incumbents appear at the top of the ballot in alphabetical order. Names of the other candidates, including Gould and Palmer, were listed after those of the incumbents.

The Los Angeles Superior Court was asked to direct election officials to prepare ballots "in a manner determined by rotation, lottery or some other constitutional process free from arbitrary preference."

The Supreme Court said Santa Monica had not shown any rational basis nor compelling or city interest to justify putting incumbents first on the ballot, and that allocation of advantageous ballot positions on the basis of alphabetical order is also invalid.

The court noted that since candidates in a top ballot position would get a substantial number of votes simply by virtue of position, such preference would undermine the fundamental principle of majority rule.

The court stressed it was not requiring a specific form of procedure be followed in every election. It said the appropriate legislative body should set up non-discriminatory procedures for determining ballot placement.

Fish, wildlife being exploited

WASHINGTON — Interior Department documents, meant for official eyes only, tell a grim story of the sputtering effort to save America's fish and wildlife from exploitation.

From confidential field reports, here are the appalling details:

SACRAMENTO: "All facets of our enforcement program have been reduced and hampered by inadequate funding . . . For the better part of the year, only one agent has been on board in the vast Los Angeles complex."

DENVER: "Enforcement operations have been reduced considerably. No field patrol during spring migration. Undercover projects have been almost completely halted." Not a single agent, the report adds, has been assigned to enforce the conservation laws in the entire state of Wyoming.

NEW ORLEANS: "Alligator poaching, selling and exporting is very prevalent throughout South Louisiana . . . (Yet) the commercial activity of the endangered alligator is going almost unchecked." Only one agent is assigned to cover the New Orleans port, including the airport, 20 miles of ship docks and several outlying areas.

NASHVILLE: "All on-going criminal investigations are being halted. We have been unable to respond to requests from Tennessee, Kentucky and North Carolina on serious complaints involving transportation and sale of white tail deer. Whe have documented 126 destructive hunting sites in North and South Carolina on which we have been unable to make even a token investigation."

BALTIMORE: From December 27, 1974, to Jaunary 15, 1975, "law enforcement operations were at a complete standstill . . . in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia."

ANCHORAGE: Because of limited funds, the Anchorage office could "make only a token enforcement effort."

BOSTON: Two aircraft, assigned to patrol the northeast region, were grounded and two were restricted because of the tight budget.

ALBUQUERQUE: The "drastically" reduced enforcement effort in the southwest region has resulted in "an increasing number of illegal consumptive uses of wildlife."

The documents in our possession show clearly that the conservation laws aren't being properly enforced. These documents were demanded last February, incidentally, by House Conservation Chairman Robert Leggett, D-Calif. But for political reasons, the Interior Department has held them up.

A response to his request was drafted and passed up the chain of command. Attached to it was this handwritten memo: "The narrative part that is attached 'tells-it-like-it-is' but probably should not go out."

Radical learns to just get by

"Ladies and gentlemen, tonight we have in our studio Scruffy Superfishal, the well-known radical activist of the 1960s, former advocate of bombing the headquarters of both the First National Bank and Jack and Jill magazine, and now an insurance salesman in Connorsville, Ind. Scruffy, it's a pleasure to have you here tonight on Face Up to It."

"Thank you, Lamont. It's really my pleasure to be here tonight on good old egalitarian network television."

"Well, that reminds me, Scruffy — if I may call you by the name which millions of young American protesters came to revere during the good old days of the '60s — a natural question is, why did you consent to appear with us here tonight?"

"An excellent question, Lamont. As you may recall, during the '60s, when I was a fervent, if misled hippie - radical - trouble-punk-protester, I started out calling for an end to the war and ended up demanding that all Detroit-made cars be melted down and turned into peace symbols. But now I have seen the light. I have noticed how Tom Hayden is running for the Senate, Abbie Hoffman is selling interviews and the old Weathermen are writing books to rip off The Movement. So I have deduced that it is the intellectually and metaphysically proper time for me to come forward, it is best for The People, it is what Chairman Mao would recommend in a situation like this and besides, I need the money."

"Yes, right, Scruffy, it is good to see that you have not lost the courage of your convictions. There may be some cynics, however, who question how it is that you once talked about overthrowing The Establishment and 'offing the Pigs,' whatever that meant, and creating a new world order while now you seem more concerned with getting a good buy on a color TV and finding a good pension plan."

"Sure, Lamont. It was, I believe, either Lenin or Bob Dylan or perhaps Howard Cosell who first said, 'A penny saved is a penny earned.' That's true of us revolutionaries as well as everyone else, you know. Therefore I thought it best — in terms, of course, of the historic class struggle of the oppressed peoples, to come forward at this time."

"But don't you remember, Scruffy, how you always said you didn't need the decadent fascist products of American industrialist exploitation and used to defrost TV dinners as a symbolic gesture of revolt?"

"Who could ever forget? But that was in a different stage of the revolution, the stage known as 'Alerting society to implicit dangers.' We are now, obviously, in a different stage of the revolution, known as 'Every man for himself.' "

"The question is, though, are things the same as they were 10 years ago or have the capitalist exploiters and military-industrial mongers been overthrown?"

"Not exactly, Lamont. However, we revolutionaries have noticed that they are not really all that bad in the long run. As you get older, you notice that even capitalist exploiters have their good side."

"That's pretty surprising coming from you, Scruffy, but change is permanent after all. Since you seem to have abandoned your old causes, though, perhaps you could tell us what your latest campaign is?"

"Nothing too much, Lamont, just getting by. Do you have some time to talk about your life insurance program, by the way?"

Noisy music a drug?

White House daughter, Susan Ford, hosting her high school prom at the White House, had much difficulty finding a group of mod musicians which could qualify for the necessary security clearance — meaning "no drug convictions."

Is noisy music with raunchy lyrics itself a drug?

From noisy music you can run but you can't hide.

In the deep south of Mexico, even the smallest town is likely to have three concert bands which play everything loud, louder, loudest.

The Zapotecs, listening, are likely simultaneously to chew plants with names like "Tears of the Virgin" while they hallucinate in the central plaza.

Italy's state-run radio and TV have been trying to wean listeners away from hard rock music. A recent radio survey showed that only 7 out of every 100 Italians listen to this mod music.

Yet the big shows on Italian networks feature the gyrating, twitching, acrobatic howlers. The San Remo Rock Festival delivered a TV audience of 20 million.

In the United States some communications industry leaders have sought to ban this "music to steal hubcaps by," but those leaders have few followers.

In Las Vegas' posh casinos, which certainly do not cater to sour-smelling junkies, most music is electronically amplified fortissimo.

Even more conventional entertainers, Wayne Newton and Debbie Reynolds, come on loud.

So the cacophonous jungle music cannot be identified with any particular age group or with any specific economic stratum. The preference which sustains the din is not race related.

But one observation leads in the direction of an intriguing conclusion: Most rock musicians are male.

In the annals of the Met, and through the era of the big bands, male and female vocalists were almost equally spotlighted.

If anything, pretty girls were out front.

In country music and in soul, it's about half-and-half.

But when it comes to rock — with such notable exceptions as Janis Joplin, Grace Slick and Maggie Bell — most of these mod music groups are mostly or all male.

Personally, I don't dig noisy music. (I think that's still an acceptable expression.) I do not pretend to comprehend its appeal.

UPI's Bruce Meyer thinks it has to do with machismo, gutsiness, a kind of super-sexism.

The same thing that moved the wiggly girls to the front of the bandstand is now showcasing tight-britches masculinity for the titillation of liberated females.

At rock concerts attendance is mixed, but the girls do most of the squealing, screaming and swooning.

The very loudness of the music represents a calculated animality which offers heretofore inhibited females a free trip.

Well, fellows, it is their turn.

Just in jest

Somehow Senior Citizens (and being one, I speak with authority) just can't seem to get it through their heads that their extra, added years don't necessarily give them the right to speak authoritatively about the generation gap. And, so far as I am concerned, there is nothing more frustrating than having to sit and listen to the pitiful, petulant pronouncements of age about the arrogance and ignorance of youth. — Next to that my pet peeve is being forced to listen to the sad, sad tale of some poor soul who is trying to retrace the half forgotten pathways of his past, only to eventually find himself hopelessly lost in a maze whose only destination is the graveyard of shattered hopes and lost illusions.

Uncivil attitude of civil servants

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — There has forever been reluctance among many people to call government workers public servants. Considering the shabby way the hirelings often treat the citizenry — witness the attitude of clerks in almost any American city hall — some feel a better term would be public enemies. And seldom has the argument been more appropriate than now as recession-buffeted taxpayers throughout the nation are finding almost no willingness on the part of public employes to cooperate toward the overall economic good.

The situation is evident in almost every jurisdiction. But New York City is perhaps the most dreadful illustration. There the municipal staff of 340,000 — largest of any city in the world — has flatly rejected most suggestions of voluntary sacrifice in the face of what city fathers believe to be near-bankrupt fiscal conditions.

The city, already $14 billion in debt from decades of overspending, and apparently unable to avoid further deficits in the 1975 budget, is being told by lending institutions to cut expenditures or go it alone. Without the short-term bank assistance every city needs to operate, Gotham would soon not be able to meet current notes, possibly even some salaries. In desperation the mayor has appealed to city workers, through their union officers, to accept a shorter work week or some other voluntary measure so that massive and disruptive layoffs can be avoided.

Shockingly, the union officials have said no. Though the city is distressingly heavy with public workers — one to 20 as opposed to one to 40 in Chicago, and though the employes receive in general the highest pay and most delicious fringe benefits of any municipal workers in America (a city machinist earns $15,000 a year, a first grade cop $16,469), the labor chieftains say the workers "have sacrificed enough." Some of them insist they will not even allow pressure relief in contract talks scheduled later in the year.

The disposition can hardly be greeted with appreciation by New York taxpayers, many of whom are out of work in the city's 11.5 per cent unemployment crunch. Nor should citizens anywhere be anything but angered when the public servants become the public menace. New York unionists are talking about riots in the streets if the public work force is forced to suffer, and threatening demonstrations have already been held by employes of other towns and counties. The welfare of millions is at the core of the issue.

And the issue, even if it passes more or less peaceably this time around, will not in itself pass in the least. State, county and municipal government has been the fastest growing industry of recent years, with 12 million adults, or two times the 1946 total, employed. Their salaries, which according to the Tax Foundation average more than that of workers in the private sector, now absorb more than $100 billion annually in tax receipts.

And as their numbers and income have increased, so has their influence. Says a councilman in one large Eastern port: "Since the unions have come along, the city workers can close this town up any time they want."

The public employe unions, to be sure, are often cited as the ultimate danger to smooth-running government operations. Not the least because the unions often contribute heavily toward the elections of officials they rely on. One estimate is that unions together have contributed as much as $50 million in each of the last few federal elections, and huge sums of this money has been directed at state and local campaigns. So, says a spokesman for the Public Service Research Group, "In many communities you have cases where union leaders negotiate salaries with friends they helped elect. No wonder they won't back down. They know they have the muscle."

But harping at unionization, however irresponsible it may become, only aggrevates a situation that cries out for more effective ways to assure the public of adequate and secure local services. During the last decade, as public worker militancy grew, officials hoped reason and calls for a sense of reponsibility might argue away the trend. But no. Today New York City, and hundreds of other cities, are captives of public employes who have little sense of duty save to themselves. This should be changed, by stiff law, and by public insistence that public servants be just that.

Catalogue firm says error made

From time to time I have received catalogues from the United States Purchasing Exchange in Hollywood. Usually they contain some kind of prize promotion.

In April the recipient was to receive a prize or prizes for 99 cents added to an order. The number of prizes depended on numbers revealed when black dots were wiped off a catalogue page.

To my surprise I was entitled to five gifts so I leafed through the catalogue to see if there was anything I wanted to order.

I finally decided on a TV viewer which I could give to my cousin as a birthday gift. The viewer plus tax, postage, handling and the 99 cents for the prizes came to $8.78. I sent a check for that amount.

Quite promptly a box arrived containing two items, the viewer and a cheap little gadget which I wouldn't knowingly pay 35 cents for. It was called a wall organizer and was made of yellow plastic with a small space for pinning up notices. It was absolutely not one of the five prizes offered.

I have no way of proving what numbers I uncovered because I was required to send that evidence in with my order. I put that in the envelope but didn't attach it to the order sheet. Perhaps it was never taken out of the envelope.

A day or so later I wrote to the purchasing exchange explaining the whole situation. Although the firm has had a generous amount of time to make things right, I have received no reply.

Today I received another catalogue with a large round spot to be removed. After my previous experience, I won't go to the trouble to remove it. — B. M., La Verne.

A week after we contacted the mail order firm, you got a letter from Sharri Tucker, customer service manager of United States Purchasing Exchange.

She said that the firm strove to maintain perfection in quality control but did have to allow for an occasional human error.

In your case, she surmised, one of the firm's pullers accidentally pulled the wrong gift item.

She said you could keep the wall organizer and would receive the five items you were to get.

Although she asked you to allow three to five weeks for delivery, the gifts arrived just 12 days after the date of her letter.

I have a question about home insurance policies.

In case of fire, cannot the person insured, with the settlement, pay off any existing mortgage and sell the lot or whatever is left of the structure?

Why should he be compelled to re-structure the building and then sell, should he or she wish to move from that area? — W. R., Montclair.

We asked your question of the State Department of Insurance and were told that it should be asked of the individual insurance company. It is a matter of contract rather than law.

People planning to buy home insurance would do well to ask this question before signing a contract.

BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Saturday, July 12, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Strive to do essential tasks in the a.m. Afternoon will find you unproductive. You'll erroneously feel the cards are stacked against you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A self-centered outlook today drives you to be extravagant with your resources as well as those of others. This could prove costly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Use the morning hours to recharge your energies. You tend to be argumentative and will be better company for yourself than for the family.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do-it-yourself projects should be avoided — you'll probably hit your thumb with a hammer. Relax. Have friends in, instead.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll try to be better than the Joneses today, but when you tally the cost, you'll find it wasn't worth it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be realistic in your evaluation of family members' abilities. You tend to expect more than they are able to give.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's not a good day for you to travel. You're restless, easily bored and the tensions of traffic will unduly irritate you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could be led astray financially by your mate or a friend who talks you into a situation costing more than you can afford.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be expecting credit for an accomplishment before you've earned it. Avoid hard feelings by puttering around the house — alone.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your feelings are too intense today for you to feel comfortable around others. Seek solitude. Avoid disappointment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You imagine others place too many burdens on your shoulders today. Keep yourself busy doing personal errands till the mood passes.

Your Birthday July 12

You won't let work be so demanding on you in the coming years. You'll find more time for fun and social activities than you have in the past.

What people say

"It's difficult to tell exactly when the bottom was or is going to be reached, but clearly it is within this period. I would say that the evidence . . . is pretty conclusive that the recessionary forces are pretty well spent and the next phase of economic activity, I think, is pretty well on the upswing."

—Alan Greenspan, the President's top economic adviser, on the end of the recession.

Ann Landers

Husband probably innocent

Dear Ann Landers: About three months ago my husband was killed in a terrible accident. The car went over a steep incline and caught fire. That was bad enough, but when the police came to my home to tell me what had happened, they informed me in the presence of my three children (ages 17, 15 and 12) that their father was not alone. With him was an 18-year-old girl who worked in the same office.

I was not aware that he was seeing anyone, and I still have no proof that he was unfaithful. The accident occurred at 5 p.m. and he usually came home home about 6:45.

Many friends have asked me questions about "the young woman." I don't know what to say to them. Their inquiries are very painful since I know what they are thinking.

Losing a wonderful mate after 20 years of marriage was a cruel blow, but the added grief because of the circumstances makes the sorrow almost unbearable. How do I explain the young girl to my children and to friends and relatives? — Heartsick And Alone

Dear Friend: Thousands of married men give office colleagues a lift to and from work every day. Why do you feel this act of friendship needs defending?

Those who question you about the young passenger are not friends. They are insensitive clods and gossip-mongers. I would not dignify their inquiries by offering any information. As for your children — the simple explanation that Dad was giving the girl a ride home from the office should be sufficient.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl 14 who does babysitting. I have been warned against telling strangers who telephone that the family is not at home. What should I say if the person calling says he is a relative?

Several girls who babysit would like an answer to this question also. Thanks loads. — Need To Know

Dear Need: Never take a chance. Say to whomever calls: "I'm sorry but Mr. or Mrs. So-And-So is busy and unable to come to the phone. Please leave your name and number and I will ask him (or her) to return your call."

Dear Ann Landers: As an officer in the United States Air Force stationed in South Dakota I had to write this letter or stay up all night thinking about it.

I am burned up at the guys who wrote, "After 21 years of child-support payments plus a lot of love, worry and heartache, I found out through a blood test that the child by my first wife is not mine."

The guy was so furious he wrote to ask if he should sue his ex-wife for deceit and fraud. Then his present wife complained that she had to fit "that kid" into her life, often putting her own daughter second.

Those two creeps need to be told that being parents is something more than having sex. Too bad they're so ignorant. They've missed it all. Wake 'em up, will ya? — T'd Off

Dear T'd: It would take more than "waking up." They'd have to be completely recycled. When they ask for my advice, I'll give it. Until then, you've done pretty well on your own.

Doctoring up the hospitals

I was extremely surprised, upon reading the report on the nation's hospitals by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, to learn that 69 of the 105 hospitals examined were deficient in aspects of health and safety. I would have thought the number was much higher.

"I was extremely surprised at the results," said Dr. Stanley Rosenfeld, section chief of HEW's Bureau of Health Insurance, more or less echoing my own thoughts. (Doctors are, by nature, not very original.) "These figures are astounding," he said. (Speaking of figures, he should see some of the nurses I had during my recent gall bladder operation.)

Rosenfeld and his survey maundered on about fire escapes, drug controls, dietary inadequacies and poorly kept medical records, but he never got his finger on the pulse of the problem. His proposed project for overhauling the nation's hospitals ("Operation Operation") could be the Bicentennial's first federal malpractice suit.

When lying on my bed of pain at the Payne Community Hospital, New Paltz, N.Y., I am less concerned with the fire extinguishers in the hall than in the rigidity of the hospital mattress. I have slept in caves that were more comfortable. What with a rubber sheet below and a leathery, half-ton blanket above, it's a wonder that the average hospital patient survives at all.

Dr. Stan might also concern himself with those fruity little dickeys one is forced to wear to give all the nurses a good laugh. Drafty and undignified, they do more to lower a patient's morale than an enema.

While Rosenfeld is whining about dietary deficiencies in hospitals, I wish he would look into the simple matter of getting the chow to the patient before he loses patience. Hospital fodder is barely palatable, but when it is delivered at bedside cold as the hand of a corpse, there is an understandable lack of appetite on the part of the patient, who is rapidly becoming a corpse himself.

The icy hand strikes again at midnight as the nurse comes to take your temperature, give you a pill or rub your back. Possibly it is some occupational hazard, but nurses that touch you after 9 p.m. always seem to have been playing with ice cubes.

The American Hospital Association also should give some attention to the matter of visitors. A patient emerging slowly from his post-operative trance should not be faced with commiserating cousins and their yelping children, wives keening over the thrown rod or the backed up toilet, office buddies bounding on the bed and crowing about bowling scores, or hospital secretaries asking for a check for the first three days — $210.

I'm sure Dr. Rosenfeld's heart is in the right place in his survey of the nation's hospitals, but he seems to have overlooked one minor item — the patient.

Dr. Lamb

Severe bedtime indigestion

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has a problem of severe indigestion nightly. When he goes to bed and turns to any position other than his back his stomach burns and he sits up or gets up. He belches and burps and ends up taking Rolaids or soda to relieve it. Sometimes he feels better soon and sometimes it's several hours before he's comfortable enough to sleep.

He had an ulcer test a few years ago and tested okay. He was bothered with indigestion at that time also, but it wasn't a case where he couldn't lie on his sides or stomach, just frequent indigestion.

He seldom drinks any liquor, uses four cups of coffee a day and smokes cigars, but he doesn't inhale. He has had indigestion problems for years but they seem very much worse the last year-and-a-half.

He is hard to get to a doctor unless really in pain, but I feel he would go if you would give us some insight as to what type of tests he should have. All I can think of is either an ulcer or gall bladder problem.

DEAR READER — Doctors arrive at a diagnosis by a series of steps. In many cases, as with your husband, the first step is the history, and it may suggest several things. Tests are done to narrow down the possibilities and often enable a definite diagnosis to be made.

The symptoms of ulcer and gall bladder are similar enough that often an examination for both is necessary. Add to this the possibility of gas from colon problems and finally hiatal hernia, which I would suspect is the most likely problem in your husband's case.

The history of having this problem when he lies down is the unique feature. Gall bladder pain and ulcer pain occur regardless of whether you are sitting up or lying down. But most patients with hiatal hernia have discomfort while lying on their back or side.

The symptoms are caused by a leaking of the acid contents of the stomach into the lower esophagus (which can occur without a hernia through the diaphragm, too). When the patient is upright the juices stay in the stomach and the symptoms don't occur.

By taking something which neutralizes the acid in the stomach, the digestive juices that leak backward are not acid and are less irritating. So both getting up and taking antacids helps in such problems.

By managing your life in terms of size of meals, when you eat and not lying down flat you can often relieve the symptoms. Most cases also require antacids when there are symptoms. For more information about hiatal hernia write to me in care of this newspaper and ask for The Health Letter number 5-6, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for costs and mailing.

Your husband will need X rays to demonstrate the possibility of a hiatal hernia as well as to examine the stomach and gall bladder.

Jacoby's bridge

South should make contract

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South wanted to know why North had given a free raise to two spades.

	NORTH (D) 11 ♠ 9 5 3 ♥ A Q 9 ♦ J 4 ♣ A J 8 6 4
WEST ♠ 6 4 2 ♥ 8 7 3 ♦ A K Q 10 9 ♣ 7 3		EAST ♠ 8 ♥ K J 10 2 ♦ 8 6 5 2 ♣ Q 10 9 5
	SOUTH ♠ A K Q J 10 7 ♥ 6 5 4 ♦ 7 3 ♣ K 2

North-South vulnerable

West	North	East	South
	1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠
2 ♦	2 ♠	3 ♦	4 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — K ♦

North replied, "It was a pretty bad bid, but it seemed a good idea at the time. Anyway, what was wrong with the four-spade contract? You were just unlucky to find everything wrong."

North's free bid was really a bad one. His opening was rock-bottom and his spade support almost nothing. However, four spades would have been reached anyway since South had enough strength to bid it by himself.

Perfect defense would beat four spades. West would have to lead a heart at trick two, but West cashed two diamonds before leading a heart.

At this point South went wrong. He couldn't resist the temptation to finesse the queen of hearts. East took his king and led the suit back to knock out dummy's ace and kill an entry.

South should have played dummy's nine of hearts. East would have won, but would not have been able to lead a second heart. South would cash two trumps; play king, ace and another club; enter dummy with the nine of trumps; ruff another club; enter dummy with the ace of hearts, and discard his last heart on the fifth club.

Ask the Jacobys

This question from Vermont: "What is the so-called 'Free double'?"

In rubber bridge when you double an opponent's game bid and he makes the contract you haven't given him his game. He had already bid it. On the other hand, such doubles aren't anything like free. He gets his trick score doubled and gets 50 for his contract. If he redoubles and scores an overtrick your free double will really have been expensive. So don't make them unless you really expect to set the declarer.

Wearing glasses rates higher IQ

What you may have suspected now has been confirmed. That people who wear eyeglasses generally are regarded as more intelligent than people who don't wear said specs. British scholars found that out in a little game with a sizable sampling of people whose IQs ranged from 100 to 150. Examined briefly by a panel of judges, the eyeglass wearers were scored much higher than the nonwearers. But when tested more thoroughly, they came out even.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS

Q. "Any truth to the old claim that mosquitoes won't bite you if you take 100 miligrams of vitamin B-1 half an hour before you go outdoors?"

A. Nothing to it. Researchers at the University of California's School of Medicine in San Francisco sometime back disproved that tall tale.

Q. "WHERE IN this country are the most onion sets grown?"

A. Along the southern shore of Lake Michigan. About 90 per cent of them sprout there.

Q. "WHAT'S cataplexy?"

A. A rare ailment that paralyzes its victims when they try to laugh.

TRAVELERS' CHECKS

The cunning thief who makes off with travelers' checks does not necessarily steal the whole book. Or so the detectives report. The experienced rapscallion "leafs" the book, instead. That is, he removes only several of the checks, stub and all, at random. Relatively few travelers thus ripped off ever realize it from some mysterious reason.

Choreographer taps way into directing movies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Another Broadway choreographer is tapping his way into film directing.

Michael Bennett, whose credits include "Follies," "Company," "Promises, Promises," "Coco," "Seesaw" and the current "A Chorus Line"-which he also directed — has signed with Universal Studios to produce and direct three movies during the next five years.

One of the projects will be an original motion picture musical by Bennett, "Pin-Ups." He will set up his own independent production company in New York.

Bennett will be following in the dancesteps of such choreographers - turned-filmmakers as Bob Fosse ("Cabaret," "Lenny," "Sweet Charity") and Herb Ross ("Funny Lady," "Play It Again Sam," "Goodbye Mr. Chips").

$76 million

Paramount sells films

NEW YORK (AP) — Paramount Pictures Corp. said today it has agreed to sell the television rights for 42 of its movies including "Godfather" Parts I and II, "Chinatown" and "The Great Gatsby" to the three television networks for about $76 million.

Paramount, a subsidiary of Gulf & Western Industries Inc., said it will receive $15 million from RCA Corp.'s National Broadcasting Co. (NBC) for "The Godfather" and "Godfather Part II."

The American Broadcasting Co. (ABC) and CBS, Inc., will pay Paramount about $61 million for 40 other movies, Paramount said. The final details of the agreements are still being worked out, Paramount said.

The 40-movie package to be sold to ABC and CBS mostly for one-time showings on television will include 'The Great Gatsby," "Chinatown," "Serpico," "Death Wish," "Paper Moon," "Catch 22," "Lady Sings the Blues" and "Save The Tiger," Paramount said. CBS and ABC will get rights for about 20 films each.

The networks said they have not decided when to show the movies but an NBC spokesman said, "A film like that would not be shown in early fall when we are coming up with our new, regular season programming."

"Big-name movies are important to a network because they attract a very large audience," he said.

Last year, NBC paid Paramount about $7 million for a one-time television showing of the 1972 Academy Award-winning film The Godfather. It was shown on NBC last November in two two-hour segments. During the four-hour showing, NBC said it sold 28 minutes of advertising for $225,000 per minute. It was the highest price ever paid for a minute of advertising, NBC said.

RAUNCH 'N ROLL — Jim ("Dandy") Mangrum and his Black Oak Arkansas enjoy their reputation as an "outlaw" rock 'n roll band, but offstage they are quiet, articulate young men with a concern for people and the values of life.

Rockers enjoy 'bad' reputation

Jim ("Dandy") Mangrum, lead vocalist for hillbilly raunch 'n rollers Black Oak Arkansas, is the classic example of Jekyll and Hyde: on stage, a ferocious, vulpine maniac snarling through BOA's foam and fang compositions — off-stage, articulate country gentleman.

Blond hair falling over his shoulders and down his back, 27-year-old Mangrum frequently punctuates his quiet conversation with a grin, "I like the reputation we have as an outlaw rock 'n roll band. Most successful bands had some sort of gimmick or sound everyone recognized. We found a space in the world of music as a 'people band', and it happened so gradually we never saw it coming, we were just happy to stay ahead of our debtors."

Mangrum discounts BOA's image as a drug band and spiritual brethren to the Marquis de Sade. "Oh I know," he smiles sheepishly, "I come on a little strong now and then during a concert, sexually suggestive, but that's part of the show. Fans come to see that and it hasn't ruined anyone yet. But we are not advocates of drugs," he pauses, "though we'll never condemn anything that grows out of the ground."

Financially, BOA is doing quite nicely these days, thank you. They live grandly on an isolated 1,500 acre farm with a recording studio and private lake in their native Marion County, Arkansas. They do believe in sharing the wealth and organized a benefit concert with proceeds going for construction of a new school house in their hometown.

"We didn't want the federal government coming here and building it then telling us how to run it," he said, betraying native distrust and resentment for "federal meddling."

The outdoor concert netted $20,000 and a hornet's nest of controversy. "A group of six fire-breathing Bible Belt preachers convinced parents to fight the benefit. One of them even held public prayer meetings every afternoon for a week before the show and led people praying for rain the day of the benefit so we would cancel. It turned out a beautiful, sunny day," Mangrum says.

BOA's latest album "Ain't Life Grand" (Atco SD 36-111) has garnered the greatest critical acclaim of any of their LPs so far.

VCTeens do bright show

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

Valley Community Theater's production of "The Roar of the Greasepaint, the Smell of the Crowd," which bowed at the second-story theater Thursday night, is a pleasantly frolicsome evening of music (not always on key), dance (not the Bolshoi) and good humored antics (right on!)

The presentation is by the VCTeens, youth wing of the community theater, and the mostly high school-aged performers displayed talent, enthusiasm, and poise beyond their years.

"The Roar" will be heard at 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays for several weekends. Reservations can be made at 622-6954.

Old pro Andy Caddes directs the large, ebullient cast with vigor and a sense of fun that the young performers share. Musical director Patti Doub gets a fine response with her Third Street Philharmonic — saxophone, flute, clarinet, piano, bass guitar, bells and incidental sound effects. The pit band is the star of the show, sliding easily from evocative background to the rollicking honky-tonk of "Three-Penny Opera."

The Anthony Newley-Leslie Bricusse musical is carried by David Gassner, arrogant and amusing as Sir, and Roger Castellano as Cocky, the Born Loser. The two young men sing well, react with admirable rapport and carry on the imaginative fantasy of the game with comedic seriousness. Gassner launches the nonsense with a rousing "On a Wonderful Day Like Today" and Castellano winds up Act I with his poignant "Who Can I Turn To?" They are fun to watch in the ironical duet, "Where Would I Be Without You?"

Sir and Cocky are aided and abetted in their catalogue of the Seven Deadly Sins by Chris Michalski as Kid: Tom Cross as Black; Dee-Dee Jernigan as Dream Girl, and John Richardson as Bully.

The exuberant urchins are Carol Spencer, Debbie Friedman, Karen Kehret, Jackie Nagey, Tracey McMillion, Patti Gornik, Norman Gee and Steve Spencer.

"Roar" is not an uproar, but it is an entertaining evening, especially suited, as Sir says, to "Benjamin Disraeli's bar mitzvah."

Magician sets shows at Plaza

Marc Collins will perform feats of magic and sleight-of-hand at the Montclair Plaza shopping center Saturday and Sunday.

Collins has appeared on television and also performed in vaudeville and talent shows as a featured entertainer. He has given performances in hospitals, rest homes and juvenile halls and at charity programs and a senior citizens' convention.

The magic act which he will perform at Montclair Plaza is family entertainment. In one of the acts he appears to cut his assistant who is also his wife, into six pieces.

There will be three shows each day — Saturday at 11:30 a.m., 2 p.m., and 4:30 p.m., and Sunday at 1, 2:30 and 3:30 p.m.

Joyce Brothers
Daydream potential

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband and I both grew up in a poor area and we're determined that our son will have all the opportunities in life that we missed. We insist that at all times he do the best he can. He is intelligent and talented and can have just about anything in the world he wants if he concentrates and works for it. Lately his grades have dropped from A's down to B's and his teacher reports he's daydreaming.

We've also noticed this at home. My husband says he may be preoccupied with girls but since he's 11 I think that's a bit early. My husband even went so far as to try to fix him up with a date with a neighbor girl to see if this would ease his problem. It didn't. How do we get him back in line? —W.L.

Dear W.L.: You don't. If you're wise, you'll leave him alone and allow him to develop at his own pace, not yours! Parents who try to relive their own lives through their children usually end up placing almost unbearable pressure on them.

All children need to learn that it's all right to fail once in a while and that if and when they do, it doesn't mean their parents will cease to love and respect them. It also doesn't mean that the rest of their lives will automatically be marred by a school failure. The child who is pressed to win at all costs, often ends up cheating himself of the experience of learning through experiment and failure.

The child who is pressured by parents to achieve in the classroom frequently is deprived of living creatively. Getting straight A's often means learning to answer questions in the expected way, learning to take tests and to accept information and directions from others without taking too much time to question and think through for himself. This kind of pattern repeated day after day is not apt to lead to creativity and original thinking. Creativity, almost always, at some point, involves what someone else might consider failure.

The daydreaming you describe may be your child's way of taking time to sort out some of his own thoughts without supervision and in an unstructured situation. Daydreaming or fantasizing is often a way of blocking out discomfort or painful situations. With children especially, it provides a learning process too, for they frequently test themselves in different situations by imagining what they would do under various challenging circumstances.

According to Dr. Jerome Singer, professor of psychology at Yale, in our extroverted, action-oriented society, daydreaming is often mistakenly associated with mental illness and is considered idleness, a poor substitute for real accomplishment. Dr. Singer feels that the ability to daydream can — and should — be increased.

We can learn to daydream lots of tension away when we face frustrating situations over which we have no power. Daydreams can also help find answers to problems for they offer an opportunity to go over possible solutions, testing them and throwing them out until we discover one that works. Daydreams allow new ideas a chance to surface.

As for your son's sexual development, I definitely suggest that you allow him to be the judge. Parents who pressure their children into premature emotional relationships with the opposite sex can do a great deal of damage. Your son is at an age when normally he should prefer members of his own sex.

Listen to him and allow him to be himself, a separate individual. If you can do this, you'll have a much better relationship with him later.

Source of iron

Organ meats, such as liver, are the best sources of iron, but red meats, egg yolks, sea foods, legumes and iron-fortified foods, such as cereals, are also very good sources. Dried fruits, such as raisins, prunes and apricots, are good sources too. The amount of iron in a single serving of whole grain or enriched cereal is not large, but the amounts of these foods generally consumed in a day can make them very important sources of iron.

DFG wardens see 'Jaws' — in the flesh

"Oh the shark has pretty teeth, dear, and he shows them pearly white."

You bet, agree two Fish and Game wardens who recently had a close-up underwater view of a great white shark just off Santa Cruz Island.

"When the shark bites with his teeth, dear, scarlet billows start to spread."

"No thank you," declare the wardens, who pretended to be part of a small underwater rock to escape the shark's ominous scrutiny.

Most certainly the wardens' thoughts were not on the words of "Mack the Knife". They had a more important consideration — survival.

Marine Patrol warden Kenneth Nilsson recalls the encounter in a memorandum submitted to the department's Diving Safety Board:

"It was the morning of May 14 and warden Bob Mahon and I were on the north side of Santa Cruz Island, one-quarter mile west of Cavern Point at a depth of from 55 to 60 feet, when Bob pulled my fin. As I turned to see what he wanted, the shark came into view proceeding broadside about 10 feet away.

"It was about 15 feet in length, but the most impressive thing was its huge body depth.

"I would estimate the shark remained in our general area for about one minute, during which time it came in and out of my view four times. I remember Bob motioning me to what seemed like a small rock probably about four feet high and six feet around.

"We crouched at the base of the rock while the shark made two passes. It swam slowly. I felt the passes were not random; it was interested; the situation was gloomy.

"We changed location to another, larger rock and again crouched at the base. I saw the shark the last time from that location. It was heading west.

"I took out my slate and wrote: 'Get in shallow — to the beach — use less air.' Bob looked blankly. My usually clear printing was illegible. Bob, with a steadier hand, jotted down: 'White Shark.' We started toward shallow water, and at last, in doubt as to our location, we surfaced. The department patrol boat Yellowtail was about 200 yards away.

"We had just got aboard the boat when biologist John Duffy and warden Gene Martin, who was on a certification dive, surfaced. They had not seen the shark."

Warden Nilsson came to some sobering conclusions about the encounter:

Outdoors

"Overall my impression is that the shark didn't want us, but that it had been aware of us before we saw it. A couple of things come to mind. Having a buddy and knowing his location was important psychologically. The incident reinforces buddy diving requirements of the department. Also I had learned enough about shark behavior to realize that just seeing a white shark doesn't mean you will be eaten."

"That's all very well, Ken," agrees John Fitch, research director of the department's State Fisheries Laboratory in Long Beach, "but a diver's or swimmer's most prudent course is to avoid situations where a shark may be encountered."

Fitch passes on some advice, most of it compiled by the Shark Research Panel of the American Institute of Biological Sciences:

—Always swim or dive with a companion.

—Avoid swimming in early morning or at night, or in extremely turbid water where underwater visibility is very poor.

—Do not wear anything bright and do not swim or dive if you have an open wound. Blood attracts sharks.

—Do not provoke a shark, even a small one.

—Keep your head when a shark is sighted. Leave the water as calmly and quickly as possible. If wearing scuba gear, it is best to remain submerged until you have reached the boat or shore.

—If spear-fishing, remove all speared fish from water immediately. Do not tow them in a bag or on a line cinched to waist.

—Avoid water where trash or garbage is present.

—If charged by a shark, face it and try to discourage charge by striking it in snout with board, rock or whatever might be available. Use hands only as last resort. The hide of a shark is very rough and may cause serious skin abrasions.

—Remember the likelihood of a shark attack is less than that of being struck by lightning.

Fitch said that on the California coastline the most dangerous of all sharks, because of its aggressiveness and size, is the white shark or white pointer, or as it is sometimes called, the man-eater. This is the villain of the book "Jaws" by Peter Benchley.

The white shark, which can reach a length of 20 feet or more, is grayish brown, gray or bluish above and a dull white below. Usually there is a black spot on the body to the rear of the pectoral or as it might be called the forward side balancing fin.

This species inhabits both tropical and temperate seas and is apparently a year-round resident of the California coastline.

The second most dangerous shark in California waters, Fitch said, is the blue shark, a coastal pelagic species that rarely ventures close to shore. Unlike the white shark which is most frequently reported as a loner, the smaller blue shark travels in schools which can erupt into frenzied activity in the presence of food or blood.

For this reason, Fitch says, the blue shark can be extremely dangerous in the event of a catastrophe at sea, such as a shipwreck or airplane crash.

Fitch says the largest blue ever reported measured 12 feet 7 inches, but the usual size is from 5 to 7 feet long.

Fitch said that in warmwater years there is always the chance of one of the dangerous sharks of the tropics visiting California waters. He said there had been at least one report of the extremely dangerous tiger shark at La Jolla and several reports of requiem sharks.

"There is little danger from other sharks along the coast unless they are provoked," Fitch said. "Any shark can be dangerous then."

Fitch said divers who antagonized small horn sharks by trying to pull them out of rocks by the tail were particularly foolish.

"If a horn shark grabs you by the finger, you're in trouble," Fitch said. "About the only way to get the shark loose is to kill it."

Fitch said the Shark Research Panel reported that of about 250 species of sharks, only 27 have been definitely

Williams can't figure out what's going on

Progress Bulletin
Sports
Pomona, California ■ Friday, July 11, 1975

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — The Angels have Dick Williams puzzled.

Williams and general manager Harry Dalton tailored the club for pitching, speed and defense this year because they felt the ball doesn't carry well enough at Anaheim Stadium to go for power.

But Thursday night's 7-3 loss to Baltimore dropped the Halos to an 18-27 record at home as compared to 22-21 on the road and they've lost nine of the last 10 at the Big A.

"I wish the hell I knew the reason," Williams exclaimed. "You try to break even on the road and win at home."

The Angel manager apparently is getting used to losing. He was calm and in an unusually good mood (the first time the writer can recall seeing Williams in a good mood after a loss).

The Halos were in Thursday night's game only until Ed Figueroa delivered his first pitch. Ken Singleton jumped on it and rode it out of the park for his eighth home run.

That was just a sample of what was to come. The Orioles batted Figueroa (7-5) for 12 hits and five runs in six innings (He faced one batter in the seventh before giving way to Andy Hassler.

Incredibly, eight of the Birds' 12 hits off Figueroa were for extra bases, two home runs (Northrup got his fifth), five doubles (two each by Elrod Hendricks and Bobby Grich and one by Brooks Robinson) and a triple by Hendricks.

"Figgy just had an off night," remarked Williams in the understatement of the year. "Everything he threw was up."

Figueroa went into the game with an earned run average of 1.99, best in the American League. As a starter, his ERA was 1.85. But Thursday night's performance made it balloon to 2.29.

Hassler kept the fire in the bullpen blazing. The big lefthander gave up a bunt hit, his third in the game to Al Bumbry, a mighty triple to Lee May and a sacrifice fly to Don Baylor.

"Andy's all right physically," Williams said. "He's just pressing. He needs a couple of good innings under his belt. Lack of confidence is his main trouble right now."

Williams gave newcomers Chuck Hockenbery and Charlie Hudson an inning each. Hockenbery walked one and gave up a hit but struck out the side. Hudson retired the three batters he faced, but leftfielder Dave Collins ran his legs off on two of them.

The Angels scored once in the sixth on Jerry Remy's infield hit, a walk to Collins and Lee Stanton's single.

They added two in the ninth on a leadoff single by Winston Llenas and back to back doubles by Dave Chalk (his 21st) and rookie John Balaz.

Williams laughed when Balaz' double was mentioned. "The take sign was on," he explained. We'd been taking pitches in that situation for three innings. Everybody on both teams knew the take sign was on but the batter (Balaz). I don't believe he would have gotten that pitch if they knew he was going to swing."

ANGEL ANGLES — Cleveland comes in for three games starting tonight which will conclude the brief home stand.

Dick Lange (3-1), Nolan Ryan (10-8) and Frank Tanana (7-5) will be the Halo hurlers against Roric Harrison (3-2), Dennis Eckersly (5-2) and Don Hood (2-5).

Baltimore is the first team to conclude its appearances at Anaheim Stadium. The Birds won't be back until next year. Cleveland is making its last appearance.

The Halos lost four of the six games with Baltimore played at Anaheim. But they're 3-1 in Baltimore with three games to be played.

Bill Singer threw batting practice Thursday night and reported no problems. "He'll be in the bullpen Saturday and Sunday," said Williams, "and if he's sound, we'll get him back into rotation as soon as possible even if it means going to a five-man rotation."

Saturday night will be helmet night with all youngsters 14 and under receiving a souvenir helmet.

Dodger cure: a break and a miracle

PITTSBURGH (AP) — It would seem that the Pittsburgh Pirates have a pretty solid lock on the East Division in the National League—and that the Los Angeles Dodgers have all but lost the key to the title in the West.

But both managers were playing it pretty close to the vest Thursday night after Willie Stargell's tie-breaking single in the sixth inning and two-run homer in the eighth led the Pirates to a 4-1 victory over the Dodgers.

It was the 10th victory in 13 games for the Bucs, who opened a six-game lead over the idle Philadelphia Phillies in the East while the Dodgers fell 10 games behind first-place Cincinnati in the West.

"Too many unusual things happen to consider either race over," Pirates' Manager Danny Murtaugh cautioned. "About this time last year we were counted out and we sneaked back. You never can tell in this game."

And the cool and optimistic Walter Alston of Los Angeles, in what sounded almost like a warning to the runaway Reds, said: "We'll be playing better ball after the All-Star break. We're finally starting to get things together after all the injuries we've had."

Dodgers' slugger Jimmy Wynn, though, took a slightly more realistic approach. "We'll have to play good ball and hope for a miracle," he said."

Stargell's homer was the 361st of his career, tying him with Joe DiMaggio for 24th place on the all-time major league list. It was also the 75th homer of the season for the Pirates, who rank second in the National League behind Cincinnati's 76.

Marshall had allowed only six earned runs in 32 innings since returning from the disabled list, and he had a string of eight scoreless innings snapped.

After Stargell's homer, Dave Parker tripled into the left field corner and Marshall walked Richie Hebner on four pitches. But Manny Sanguillen flied to Paciorek in left to end the inning.

The victory was the 73rd of his career for the 26-year-old Reuss. The only National League pitcher with more victories at a younger age is Cincinnati's 24-year-old Don Gullett, who has 74.

Giusti came on with nobody out in the ninth after Reuss had walked Jimmy Wynn and Garvey had singled. Giusti got Ron Cey on a foul pop to Stargell, then pinch-hitter Bill Buckner flied to Oliver at the wall in right-center and John Hale popped foul to Sanguillen for the final out.

Birdies propel Miller, Watson

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) — Johnny Miller birdied five of the first seven holes and Tom Watson birdied three of the first five to share the early lead at nine under par in the third round of the British Open golf championship today.

Miller, a former U.S. Open champion and three-time winner on the U.S. tour so far this year, made the turn in 31, five under par, after starting the day four strokes back of David Huish, the Scottish teaching pro who fired 67 a 136 total and the second-round lead.

Miller, using hot putting, chopped off stroke after stroke with birdies on the first, second, fifth, sixth and seventh holes. He barely missed birdies on the third and fourth, putting just short from nine and 15 feet. He also missed by two inches on the eighth when a 25-foot putt stopped just short of the cup.

Watson, who was at 138, only two strokes back of Huish at the start of the day, birdied the second, third and fourth holes and barely missed a birdie on the fifth.

Miller started the day at 140 and Watson at 138.

East battles West in grid classic tonight

By KEVIN CLOE
PB Staff Writer

Led by 14 valley players, the East All-Stars hope to take a lead in the series against the West tonight at Citrus College in the 10th Annual San Gabriel Valley High School All-Star Football Game.

Coached by South Hills High's Jim Jones, the East will be seeking its fifth win in the classic, having won four, lost four and tied one against the West.

The East's 30-man squad will have eight valley players on the starting lineup, with three on offense and five on defense.

Kickoff time for the Glendora Rotary Clubs charity classic is 8 p.m.

Bonita High's Brad Frick will be seen in the opening offensive backfield, joining South Hills' John Bates at halfback.

Then on the offensive line, Walnut High's Rick Packer will be at the guard spot while Royal Oak High's Don Dutton is scheduled for center.

Defensively, Claremont High's Kent Stalwick is slated for the safety spot, with Valley Defensive Player of the Year, Frank Malicki of Royal Oak, scheduled to start at linebacker.

Rowland High's Dave Pearce, one of two defensive captains on the East squad, will start at the rover position, with his high school teammate Bob Alkema slated for the secondary. Charter Oak High's Robbie Ehlenburg will get the starting call at the defensive end spot.

Jones has been impressed with a few of the valley players who will be playing for him tonight.

"Probably our biggest strength is that we have excellent football players in key positions," he stated.

One of the key players he mentioned was his own quarterback from South Hills, Brian Bethke.

"With Brian at quarterback and Pat Sylvester (Workman) and Joe Fletcher (Bassett) at fullbacks, it gives us a good start."

However, Jones got some bad news when wide receiver Steve Benton of Los Altos High suffered a fracture of the shoulder during practice. "He's a fine receiver and we're going to miss him," the East skipper commented.

Jones gave a lot of praise to Claremont's Stalwick, who was a two-time All-CIF defensive back.

"Kent is really a pleasure to be around," he said. "I've been in coaching for a long time and I've seen a lot of athletes. Some you can tolerate, some you can't stand, and then there are some who are a real pleasure to coach. Kent is one of those."

He has also been very impressed with Ganesha High running back Arthur "Turtle" Lane.

"We don't figure to start him, but he'll see a lot of action," Jones noted. "He's extremely quick and he's catching on to the offense. We're happy to have him on the team."

Ehlenburg of Charter Oak has also been one of the standouts during the workouts.

"The main thing our defense has to do is contain the West's Dale Bunn (Monrovia)," Jones stated. "He's a very good scrambler. But we have two very good defensive ends. If Ehlenburg and Evans (West Covina) can't contain him, then I don't think anybody else on the team can."

Jones will be using the Wishbone offense against the West, the type of offense he's been coaching at South Hills the past five years and the one that gained him the CIF 4-A championship last season.

"I really think the fans like a lot of scoring," Jones said. "So we're going to open up the game a little. Some people think the only way you can do that is throw, but I don't think that's true. I remember a couple of years ago the West won by a 57-14 score and it was mostly a running game.

"I think the outcome of tonight's game will depend on which quarterback is the hottest," he added.

So it ought to be an interesting battle between the East's QB Bethke and the West's Bunn.

Coaching the West is Monrovia High's Tom Paton, who has coached his team to three straight Mission Valley League championships.

The East will be looking for revenge tonight after the West claimed a 19-17 victory last year to tie up the series.

Proceeds of the charity classic will go to Casa Colina Rehabilitation Hospital in Pomona, Boys Clubs in Pomona, Baldwin Park, El Monte and Pasadena, Glendora Rotary Foundation and the Foothill Presbyterian Hospital.

The sponsoring Glendora Rotary Club has raised more than $70,000 for charities throughout the valley in the past nine years.

Dark picks 'Bad' Henry

NEW YORK (AP) — It figured that Alvin Dark wouldn't go strictly by the numbers when he filled out his roster of American League all-stars.

The numbers were the record 7,357,811 ballots cast by the fans for the players of their choice. As a result, Dark's Oakland A's and the New York Yankees have a monopoly on the starting lineup next Tuesday night in Milwaukee.

But Dark also ignored some of those fan-mailed numbers. Being runner-up in the voting didn't automatically mean being an all-star reserve. In some cases the second-place, third-place and further-down-the-list-place players were bypassed by Dark.

The least surprising reserve named Thursday was Milwaukee's Hank Aaron, named to his 25th all-star squad and his first as an American Leaguer. The Brewers' designated hitter was eighth in voting among AL outfielders.

Aaron was selected to 24 in the National League with the Milwaukee and Atlanta Braves (sitting out an all-star game in 1962 with an injury) and was traded to the Brewers last winter after surpassing Babe Ruth's record 714 career home runs. If he plays Tuesday night, he'll tie the record of 24 all-star appearances by Willie Mays and Stan Musial.

Oakland's Claudell Washington and Cleveland's George Hendrick were also selected by Dark as reserve outfielders, despite the fact they didn't even show up among the fans' top 12 choices.

The remaining two backup outfielders are Boston rookie Fred Lynn, who managed fourth in the voting as a write-in candidate, and Kansas City's Hal McRae, sixth in the balloting but chosen over the Texas Rangers' slump-ridden Jeff Burroughs.

Lynn and first baseman Mike Hargrove of the Rangers were the only runners-up in the voting who were named to the AL roster by Dark.

Catchers Ray Fosse of Oakland, Carlton Fisk of Boston and Ellie Rodriquez of California were 2-3-4 in the voting but Dark opted for fifth-place Bill Freehan of Detroit as his No. 2 man.

The New York Yankees' Chris Chambliss and Baltimore's Lee May were 3-4 among first basemen but the next two in line—Carl Yastrzemski of Boston and George Scott of Milwaukee—got the nod from Dark.

Similarly, Dark bypassed Kansas City's Cookie Rojas, Baltimore's Bobby Grich and the Yanks' Sandy Alomar to name Jorge Orta of Chicago as a reserve second baseman.

He also overlooked Oakland's Sal Bando and Cleveland's Buddy Bell to pick rookie Dave Chalk of California at third base and chose Chicago's Bucky Dent over runner-up candidate Robin Yount of Milwaukee for reserve shortstop duty.

The manager of the world champion A's has plenty of "home-grown" talent with which to work. Oakland uniforms will be on seven of the 28 players, the fourth straight year that the three-time world champions have outnumbered the remaining 11 AL clubs.

Young Ortega paces '330'

Ralph Ortega hurled a five-hitter and struck out seven, while also driving in two runs with a single to lead La Verne Post 330 to at 3-0 non-league triumph over Pomona Post 30 Thursday evening.

Ortega, a Bonita High sophomore, has been playing in the La Verne Colt League most of the season.

La Verne got one run in the fifth inning when Dave Drury, Beto Bernal, Ortega and Jim Richards drew walks — scoring one.

Post 330 rallied for two more runs in the sixth when Wally Pitts got hit by a pitch, Bill Bumstead hit into a force play, Ron Pickenpaugh singled, Bernal walked and Ortega singled to send home the two.

La Verne is now 14-10 for the season.

In one other legion game played Thursday, Claremont Post 78 collected a "gift" 9-5 triumph over Ontario Post 112 at John Galvin Park.

Claremont only managed to get four hits, but it was the recipient of 15 walks, one hit by pitch, six wild pitches, and one passed ball.

Brent Bosson claimed two of Claremont's four hits, with one of those driving in a run in the ninth inning.

John Huddleston pitched five innings of relief and struck out seven while walking only one. Starter Brad Kirkendall pitched four innings and fanned three before leaving the game when hit by a pitch.

Claremont is now 22-14 for the season.

Kicking around

By Adrian Mercado & Willy Keo

With the new youth soccer season just around the corner let us examine a decision which some parents and coaches will have to face. The issue is whether their child should play (or they themselves should coach) in the AYSO or Pacific Coast League.

The basic difference is one of adult philosophy, not child enjoyment. PSL is affiliated and AYSO is not. At times the question of affiliation is presented as evidence of merit. When it comes to youth soccer it simply is not so. What affiliation means is that the local organization is affiliated with the state organization which in turn is affiliated with the national organization which in turn is affiliated to the world group . . . . which in turn means nothing to the kids.

In response to the AYSO invitation to the national body, the United States Soccer Federation (or USSF), to attend its annual General Meeting, Gene Edwards, President of USSF answered: "Even though I am unable to attend I feel I should report to you the feeling of our board. It is the consensus that all avenues have been explored to bring your fine organization into the family but to no avail, and consequently the time and effort of our organization must now be directed to pursuits which will be more fruitful. It is important that the game go forward and although both organizations appear to have the same goal in mind, we do have different avenues of approach."

Suffice to say, "the family," which is approximately 58 years old, has done next to nothing to promote youth soccer. The reason for this may be due to its "club" type approach. Basically the club approach means a club or individual forms a team, buys equipment, procures players and while remaining autonomous enters the team in a league for competition. A coach, usually the owner, may play his players as much or as little as he wants . . . . the emphasis is on winning. PSL functions along these lines.

AYSO on the other hand allows no private ownership of any of its teams.

"Everyone Plays" is its basic philosophy guaranteeing each player he will play at least one half of every game. Teams are balanced in experience and age of player to provide fair competition. Coaches are appointed to teams as well as being removed from teams. Emphasis is on participation and good sportsmanship. AYSO, inc through its area directors and regional commissioners, monitors and controls the teams to ensure proper treatment of players and correct attitude of the coaching and officiating staff.

AYSO encourages new players, coaches and officials to join. Experience is not necessary.

Why then the conflict between AYSO and PSL? AYSO officials argue that they take inexperienced youngsters, teach them the game, and once a player has reached a high skill level the PSL clubs try, and sometimes succeed, in wooing them away with the promise of finer competition and travel. PSL they claim, does not promote the popularity of the game by encouraging new players to participate. Instead it raids AYSO to obtain players.

PSL members feel their organization helps the sport by stressing quality rather than quantity. While this may have been true during the early developmental stages of AYSO the gap has narrowed almost totally because AYSO coaches have gained more experience and most of the better players have remained in AYSO.

This year AYSO's 40,000 young players will approximately double, and PSL's raids will seem more insignificant. Youngsters will continue to enjoy the fastest growing sport in America regardless of its elder's bickering. There is a place for both organizations within the structure of American soccer. The question is . . . which will it satisfy . . . the child's needs or the adult ego?

Area "G" commissioners take note that Al Vecchio's proposed meeting has been reset for July 15. The eight regions involved are ACE, Claremont, Diamond Bar, Ontario, Montclair, Pomona, Riverside and newly-added Hacienda Heights. Call Al for particulars.

The Aztecs' recent shellacking by Portland has reduced their chances of winning a wild card team berth in the NASL playoffs. A system based on total points gives teams other than the divisional winners a chance to shine in the fight for the league trophy.

On Saturday the Vancouver Whitecaps will oppose the Aztecs at El Camino Stadium as the teams go down to the wire. Including the Vancouver game, the Aztecs have five league contests remaining . . . Dallas Tornado, Hartford, San Jose and the Portland Timbers who have six Wolverhampton Wolves on the team . . . all first division English players. At presstime the Seattle Sounders and the Portland Timbers are locked for first place in the Western Division with 92 points each but Portland has more games left to play than Seattle and could take the title if they can win and score the maximum goals per game. A victory is worth six points . . . plus one point per goal up to a maximum of three goals, allowing a high scoring team to add nine points in a win. The NASL plays off all tie games via sudden death overtimes, and ultimately in the penalty-kick tie-breaker method.

* * *

CBS-TV carried the Seattle-NY game featuring Pele, marking the second TV excursion for NASL soccer since the brilliant Brazilian arrived on the Cosmos scene. Strangely, after four victories, the Cosmos lost 5-1 to the Aztecs and again to the Seattle Sounders despite Pele's pin-point passing perfection. Both the Aztecs and the Sounders played Pele very physically and without much protection from the referees. It is observable that the talents of Pele who brought three World Cups to Brazil, is way over the talent level of the NASL players which in soccer can spell disunity. His deception is so good and his passes so unexpected that his own teammates are not ready for his skill. Word has it that Pele is asking the Cosmos to consider bringing up his world cup teammate to join him . . . This would be Jair, the flamboyant forward who spent last year with Marseille of France and who topped the Brazilians with seven goals in the 1970 World Cup . . . second only to West Germany's Gerd Muller. There are a number of fine players available who will not play World Cup again for their countries but who could put some real starch into the NASL . . . Rivera of Italy, Gadocha of Poland, Rivelino of Brazil, Bobby Moore of England . . . among many.

* * *

Tony Morejon's next international venture is set for the Coliseum for August 3 when East Germany's World Cup team takes on Mexico's best eleven. The East Germans blew the lid off the soccer world by taking West Germany to camp . . . the only defeat inflicted on the ultimate champs who went on to beat Holland for the World Cup. Rumor in Germany had it that West Germany would rather lose than win vs East Germany because the winner would go into a tougher bracket while the loser would meet relatively easier opposition. That's how it turned out. East Germany got konked and West Germany went on to top honors. The East German who got the goal to beat West Germany was Sparwasser . . . who will be in the lineup at the Coliseum.

The recent Morejon Coliseum promotion of Poland vs Guadalajara's Universidad was much enjoyed by the 10,000-plus who saw the Mexicans (aided by Brazilians Jair, Eusebio and Nene) come back strong and tie 1-1 after Poland had walloped the Mexicans in San Francisco two nights earlier, 3-1.

QUITE A CATCH — Ralph Johnnot of Kernville, Calif. caught this one-pound, five ounce trout July 4 at June Lake and it was worth $1,000. The fish was one of a half dozen tagged and planted in the lake for the annual July 4 fishing derby.

Bolsa Chica Reserve plan awaits approval

Approval from the Army Corps of Engineers is the last step remaining before work can proceed on the first phase of the Department of Fish and Game's marsh restoration project at Bolsa Chica Ecological Reserve in Orange County.

One of the most important steps was taken June 30 when the South Coast Regional Coastal Commission approved the project providing the department complies with two conditions set by the Santa Ana Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The board has given its approval with the stipulation the department complete a soil stabilization engineering plan and submit a National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System application.

Wildlife manager Ronald F. Hein, Department of Fish and Game regional project leader, said Corps of Engineers approval is expected soon since it had awaited a Coastal Commission decision.

Bolsa Chica is a degraded coastal wetlands acquired by the state in 1973 from Signal Companies in a land exchange agreement. The first phase plan is to reestablish a salt marsh system in 150 acres of the 557.5-acre reserve by construction of a levee and water controls to permit tidal flushing. The purpose of the levee is to protect existing oil field installations and nearby residential areas.

The Wildlife Conservation Board has allocated $702,000 for the project, which will also include public use facilities.

Since the land exchange, the reserve has been posted with no trespassing signs as prescribed in the agreement with Signal Companies. The intention of the department, however, is to make the reserve available for limited public use including photography, fishing, bird watching and student sutdy.

For this reason the first phase project will include two parking areas — one at Warner Avenue and Pacific Coast Highway and another opposite the new entrance to Bolsa Chica State Park on Pacific Coast Highway — with hiking trails originating at each area. The Warner Avenue trail will provide access for fishermen, whereas the other trail will be a nature walkway leading to the levee.

implicated in attacks on man or boats. However, in many instances it was a matter of speculation as to what kind of shark attacked.

Among the more harmless sharks of California waters are the common thresher, the soupfin and the leopard.

All three are caught commercially and currently bring an average of 28 cents a pound to the fisherman. The yearly cmomercial catch of all sharks is about 400,000 pounds.

Leopard sharks and gray and brown smoothhounds, some of which are included in the commercial catch, are numerous in coastal waters and relatively harmless. Fitch said the only record of a leopard shark attack was on a diver who had suffered a nosebleed while scuba diving.

Another shark found in California waters is the mako or bonito shark. In the Atlantic and southwestern Pacific this large shark has a reputation for unprovoked attacks on boats, but in the eastern Pacific it appears more docile. The bonito shark also makes up a small part of the commercial catch.

The bonito shark and thresher, are also very popular as game fish, and are considered by sportsmen as two of the top fighters in the sea.

The soupfin shark and the dogfish once were important on the commercial market for the Vitamin A derived from their livers, but today there are other more economical and convenient sources of this important vitamin. The soupfin continues to be popular, however, particularly among orientals who make a soup from the dried fins.

Fitch said sharks are classed as elasmobranchs, that is fishes distinguished by having cartilaginous skeletons and rough, sandpaper-like scales. The vast majority of fishes have bony skeletons and thin, membranous scales.

The teeth of elasmobranchs are modified or specialized scales subject to considerable variation depending on the species of shark.

Some such as the white shark have rows of teeth adapted for efficient cutting consisting of flattened blades with serrated edges; others such as the ragged tooth shark have slender, curved and sharp teeth and adapted for tearing. Others such as the guitarfishes have flattened teeth suitable for crushing food such as shellfish.

Sharks also vary greatly in size, from the harmless and sluggish whale shark which reaches lengths up to 60 feet or more to the tiny dogfishes off Cuba that grow to but 10 inches in length.

But big or small, Fitch recommends keeping a safe distance between yourself and the nearest shark.

In some years no shark attacks have been reported along the California coastline, but in other years, such as 1955 and 1959, as many as five attacks were reported.

The attacks occurred from Trinidad Bay to San Diego during all seasons of the year.

Of the five attacks in 1955, two, one at La Jolla, the other at San Francisco, proved fatal. All five victims survived the 1959 attacks.

3 personnel changes listed

JAMES A. JONES | JOHN G. OLSON | CARL M. BRUNST

Three personnel changes were announced at Carr Paper Co. by Ernest N. Taylor, president of the Pomona firm.

James A. Jones is transferring from manager of Carr Paper, Glendale, to merchandising director of Carr Paper, Pomona. He has been in the wholesale paper distribution field for 17 years and served as manager of the Glendale operation for three years.

John G. Olson is moving from eastern regional sales manager to manager of Carr Paper, Glendale. He has been with the firm one year and in the wholesale paper business 10 years.

Carl M. Brunst changes from western regional sales manager to sales manager at Pomona. With Carr Paper Co. for six years, Brunst advanced from salesman to sales supervisor and regional sales manager.

Carr Paper began in Pomona over 30 years ago under the leadership of Richard L. Carr Sr. The company now services over 3,000 customers and warehouses over 2,500 products manufactured by Crown Zellerbach, Scott Paper, Kimberly Clark, Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing, Sylvania, Gayland Container, Amoco and Lily Cup Corp.

Evolution in textbooks may be too dogmatic

BURLINGAME (AP) — A state Board of Education committee agrees with religious fundamentalists that some science books proposed for California schools treat evolution too dogmatically.

"In a couple of texts, the presentation was much too dogmatic," Louis Honig Jr., one of five board members who had a last-minute study of the texts, said in an interview.

"They say things like, 'This is what happened 60 million years ago.' The board's policy says evolution should be presented as the best estimate using the scientific method, but still open to question."

The committee is recommending removal of some of the books from the approved list of texts for the state's public schools in 1976-77. That decision is up to the board today.

Removal of the books would be a victory for fundamentalists, primarily from San Diego, who conducted a vigorous letter-writing campaign aimed at winning equal treatment for biblical accounts of human creation.

The groups failed to win state approval of a creation-oriented science series but got the board to delay voting on science and social studies texts for a month to reconsider the books' treatment of evolution.

Some of the social studies books have also been attacked by groups representing minorities and women. The board appointed another committee to study those allegations.

This month's agenda also includes controversies involving schools in Richmond and Orange County, and classes for the mentally retarded.

The Richmond dispute concerns affirmative action plans for hiring women and minorities. The Northern California city's all-white school board has refused to file the state-required plan.

The state board's attorney, Thomas Griffin, said in an interview he will tell the board it has the power to cut off some state funds to Richmond or even to ask a judge to jail the rebellious school board members for contempt.

Signups set

Registration commitments will be accepted at Our Lady of the Assumption School, 611 W. Bonita Ave., Claremont for the 1975-76 school year at the school office next Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The school has grades one through eight.

Retired cop can't forget mother's killer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's been almost 12 years, but David Tillotson hasn't forgotten.

Some of his former colleagues in the Los Angeles Police Department believe he's gone beyond stubbornness into obsessiveness, possibly fantaticism.

"They think it's getting to me, think I should give up," he said quietly. "They think I am going a little flippy."

But he doesn't care. What concerns him is that the killer who beat his mother to death nearly 12 years ago is still a free man.

The 51-year-old retired police lieutenant is offering a $20,000 reward for "information leading to the arrest and conviction of my mother's killer."

He said, "There is someone out there who probably knows something about the murder or the killer."

His mother, Rena Tillotson, 77, was murdered Sept. 13, 1963 during a $30 robbery at her little gift shop.

At the time Tillotson was a patrol sergeant in the Hollywood division, and since then he has spent thousands of hours and "at least $6,000" checking out leads and possible suspects.

Now that he is retired, he is working at it almost full time.

Although reluctant to criticize the department he served for 28 years, Tillotson does say quietly, "I am not too happy with the way they've handled it."

He recalled that a captain once told him, "You should give up and let God take care of the killer.

Tillotson, a quiet, stubborn man, says he will keep checking out every possible lead until the case is marked "closed."

GRANDFATHERS ALL — A. C. Whitney, 93, grew bored in retirement so he turned to building grandfather clocks. They help each other pass the time of day. He lives in Yakima, Wash.

Women also quit, if challenge gone

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite equal opportunity laws, it will be a long time before women managers in numbers will be pulling the levers at high levels of American industry, a management specialist says.

The explanation, says Eugene Jennings, has nothing to do with sex, courage or ability. It may, however, have a lot to do with intelligence, the desire for achievement and job satisfaction.

"The woman manager is discovering what male managers have known for years, that much of managerial work is tedious and boring," says Jennings, a professor at Michigan State University and a business consultant.

Many women, he continues, "are no different than many men who, after 8 or 10 years in the managerial world, learn it is not what it is cracked up to be. A lot of the work is simply routine and almost meaningless if you don't have a reason to justify it."

Jennings believes that "the married male with a family can justify the tediousness and onerousness of his work because he is supporting a family; but a woman whose husband is a good breadwinner cannot do so."

After a decade or less in managerial work, many high-achieving women have learned a great deal about carrying the authority and responsibility of managing in terms of profit objectives and budgeting for performance.

Many of them are in the $20,000 to $40,000 salary category and have had experience running a branch office or department or zone. They are just being noticed for possible promotion to division manager.

At this point many of them leave managerial work, Jennings notes, and seek something more rewarding. Finding herself on what she considers a treadmill in terms of job satisfaction, a woman often goes into business for herself.

Another alternative, noted by Jennings, who is credited in managerial circles with having built the first computer program to monitor executive mobility, is to work for a smaller, service-oriented corporation that requires more initiative and creativity.

A third alternative is to stay with the corporation but to quit line, or supervisory work, and take on staff work, such as planning, advertising, personnel and aspects of finance that seem more technically than managerially oriented.

Jennings stresses that the decisions made by women aren't signs of inadequacy.

"Not all men are cut out for management and not all women are either," he says. But the women, seemingly, have a chance to do something about it.

The corporate world is a poor battleground on which to prove women's liberation, says Jennings. It has its own requirements, and they sometimes conflict with personal ambitions.

Most women and men adjust to these requirements. Most men and women in managerial ranks believe in equal fights for everyone and they accept the ground rules. They limit personal ambition. But one type of woman cannot.

The radical, or as she is termed in industry, "the very unusual woman," cannot survive in the corporation, says Jennings, explaining: "If you have a drive to succeed at all costs you're going to get shot down in this eminently human world of the corporation."

The very unusual woman thinks she is better than most women and should be accorded unusual respect and opportunity because of her superiority. "Her greatest enemy is the other woman, who knows the very unusual woman seeks to succeed at any cost."

Because of her behavior she disrupts the regular business of the corporation, which is to produce and make money. She finds her own goals in conflict with corporate goals, and so she leaves for a more suitable battleground.

Most women, however, don't fit the very unusual category. When they leave they do so for positive reasons. "It's not that they can't hack it," says Jennings, "they don't want to hack it."

Ford sets dividend at 6 cents

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Ford Motor Co. today declared a third-quarter dividend of 60 cents a share, the second consecutive quarter that the firm has reduced the payment from the previous 80 cents level.

Ford said the dividend would be paid on Sept. 2 to shareholders of record on July 31.

Ford cut its second-quarter dividend to 60 cents from 80 cents, which the firm had paid since the third quarter of 1973. The reduction was the first by the firm since the 1958 recession. Dividends had increased steadily since then, peaking at 80 cents.

Ford lost $11 million in the first quarter — $158 million before tax credits and an accounting change — and was expected to earn little more than its dividend in the just-completed second quarter.

Analysts said Ford earnings in the April-June period were about 75 cents to 90 cents a share, half of what it earned in the same year-ago period. Ford said it would release its financial results at the end of this month.

By reducing the dividend to 60 cents, Ford is expected to save $74 million for the year.

The other auto companies also have either eliminated or reduced dividends this year because of dwindling profits and unprecedented spending programs.

Ford, General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. are spending an estimated $6 billion over the next five years to make their entire product lines more fuel efficient.

The massive expenditures, coming at a time of miniscule profits to heavy losses, have forced the companies to conserve cash by slashing dividends.

The highest earthfill dam in the United States is located at Oroville, Calif.

Paint firm declares dividend

The board of directors of Standard Brands Paint Co. announced the regular quarterly cash dividend of eight per cent per share, payable Aug. 5 to shareholders of record at the close of business on July 15.

This makes the 48th consecutive quarterly dividend paid by the company.

Standard Brands Paint Co. manufactures paint and retails a complete line of paint and home decorating products through its retail outlets located throughout the western states.

Business brief

BALTIMORE (AP) — A 51-year-old executive of the Singer Co. pleaded guilty in federal court here to a misdemeanor charge of participating in an illegal $10,000 corporate contribution to the 1972 Nixon-Agnew re-election campaign.

Martin Leader faces a maximum penalty of a year in prison and a $1,000 fine. The charge against Leader was part of the 2½-year-old federal investigation of Maryland political corruption. The probe led to the resignation of vice-president Spiro T. Agnew.

Leader was finance manager of Singer's Simulation Products Division of Silver Spring, Md. The Singer Company was fined $2,500 in the case after prosecutors agreed to reduce the charge to a misdemeanor, which would not imperil Singer's government contracts.

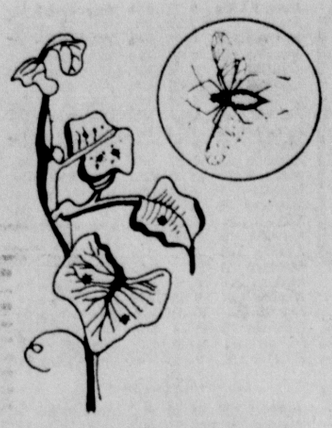
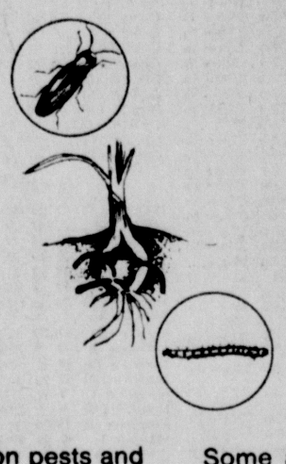
Know garden pests for a better harvest

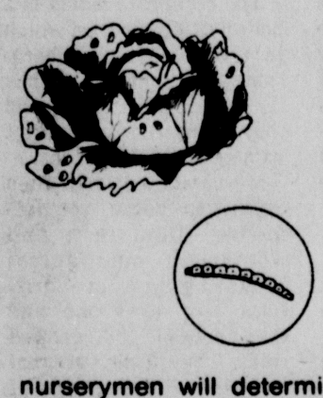


Aphid

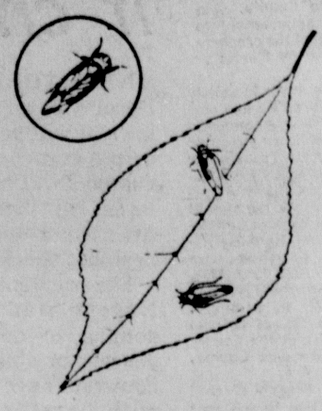


Click beetle

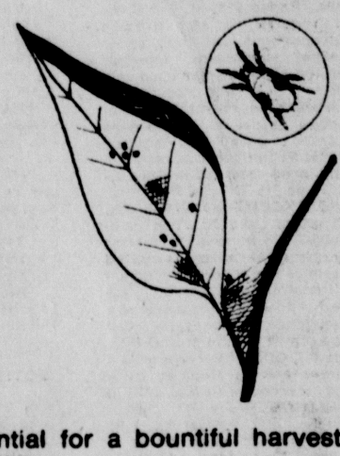
Root maggot



Cabbage worm



Leaf hopper



Mite

ABOVE ARE 6 of the most common pests and mites facing Southland vegetable gardeners. Some are controlled by soil conditioners and others by sprays. A check with local nurserymen will determine which is the best method of controlling pests. Control of garden predators is essential for a bountiful harvest this summer and fall.

Build it yourself

California lawn chair

By STEVE ELLINGSON

The problem for most of us these days is that we have too much month left over at the end of the money.

Yet here we are with a long hot summer just ahead and lawn furniture to buy. But there's no reason for that to be a drain on the family bank account.

Do-it-yourselfers have been getting along just fine for years, at bargain prices too. With a little wood and a few tools, anyone can build handsome furnishings for around the house.

The sturdy lawn chair pictured here is inexpensive (when you build it yourself) and it's also tops in comfort. You will notice it has a curved seat and back which will fit everybody's curves. It's put together with screws and bolts and will last for years.

Pattern for building this chair is full-size. You need only trace the pattern parts on wood, then saw them out and finally put them together. Any inexperienced amateur can do it with success. A list of required materials is included along with step-by-step directions. Elaborate tools are not needed.

To obtain the full-size California Lawn Chair pattern No. 55, send $1.25 (includes postage & handling). If airmail is desired, send $1.50 by cash, check or money order to:

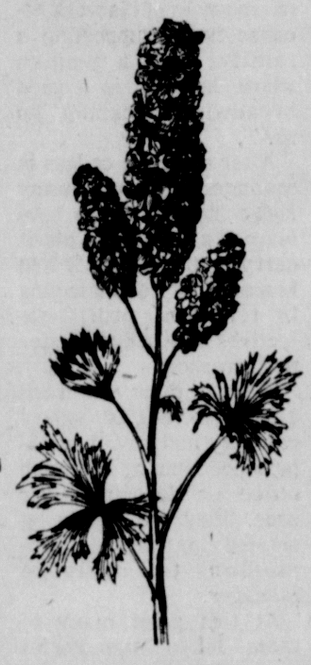
Work contrast into garden

Success in transforming bare slopes into areas of beauty is based primarily on two things; good advice on plant varieties and careful planting.

Planting materials should be adapted to local climates and require a minimum of maintenance.

Gardenias, Azaleas and other moisture-loving plants aren't recommended for planting on slopes, says the California Association of Nurserymen. Some Junipers — ground hugging types — are ideal on slopes, while others of this hardy clan look out of place. Your nurseryman, who has knowledge of the plants least-suited for local conditions, is an excellent source of information and advice on what to plant.



In certain climates creeping Manzanita is a possibility for attractively covering slopes. It features small glossy leaves and red berries. Once established, it requires very little attention.

Baccharis is as beautiful as it's tough. The low-growing evergreen is an attractive cover — even on slopes of freeway plantings. Durable Rock Rose features a spreading growth habit and textured foliage. Half dollar-size flowers — white petals with a mahogany spot at the base — are spring-summer attention getters.

Point Reyes Creeper and Carmel Creeper are two Ceanothus varieties which are popular covers for slopes. Each has a foilage quality that is unique and the show of blue flowers in spring is beautiful.

Spreading forms of Pyracantha are stellar performers on sunny slopes. Many Californians cherish the brilliant berried effect of Pyracantha. Bird lovers are fond of the arrangement which provides food and shelter at the same time.

To be found in the bedding plant sections of local nurseries are many ground covers that excel on sloping contours.

Shopping will reveal several types of Ice Plant and Ivy, plus dependable Vinca, Trailing Gazanias, Trailing African Daisies, and Trailing Lantana. Some are frost-tender, which again points up the value of seeking professional advice from your local nurseryman.

Repairing damaged brickwork is a necessary part of house maintenance, not only for the sake of appearance but because it can prevent leaks on the inside of the house.

Brick mortar may deteriorate because of house settling, leaving open spaces that contribute to drafts and allow the entry of rain during high winds. The deficient mortar may be spotted as open spaces between two or more bricks.

Repointing (a professional word used to describe the replacement of crumbling mortar) can be learned by anyone. The chore has been simplified by the availability of small bags of premixed mortar. You can use just the amount needed without the bother of screening sand, getting fresh cement and measuring the proper amounts. All that is required with premixed mortar is to add water and make a workable mixture.

Tools required for the job are a cold chisel, a fairly heavy hammer, a pointing trowel, a mortar board or hawk and a joint striker tool. If you have neither a mortar board nor a striker tool, you can get by without them if you are reluctant to purchase them for a single project. The mortar board is for holding the mixture conveniently, the striker tool for compressing and shaping the soft mortar into an attractive joint.

When you locate the spots that need pointing, mark them with chalk so they can be spotted later as you begin the work. The damaged mortar must be chipped out, opening the space completely between the bricks. Do this with the cold chisel and hammer, tapping the mortar solidly in place. Remove all pieces of the loose mortar and brush out all mortar dust.

Because the porous brick will quickly soak up all water in the mortar mixture, wet down the opening thoroughly, using a small sprayer, a saturated brush or even a hose. It's a good idea to clean out the mortar from ALL damaged brickwork, so the new mortar can be mixed and applied at one time.

In making the mortar mixture, use only just enough water to make a rather firm mix. Too much water will result in a weak bond. In packing the damaged joint with mortar, try not to get any on the surface of the bricks. If some does get on, wipe it off immediately with a wet rag. If it is permitted to harden, it will leave a stain difficult to remove. Joints must be made so they will shed water.

After the joints are repointed, go over them with a damp brush to keep the mortar moist until it has set. Spray the joints at least twice a day for two or three days. If you use a hose for this, be sure to set the nozzle for sprinkling,5 otherwise the pressure of the water may push out some of the mortar.

When the old joint has crumbled so badly that all of the mortar must be replaced, remove the entire brick and soak it in water for half an hour or so. Use just enough mortar in the opening for the brick to fit snugly into place.

(Repairing concrete and patching plaster are among the 35 subjects in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N. J. 07666.)

Gardener's Check list

Planning a party? For unusual and extraordinary decorations, why not pick up some pots of bright blooming geraniums, pelargoniums, chrysanthemums or marguerites?

Plant zinnias, scarlet sage (salvia), marigolds, periwinkle and other annuals to assure continuous summertime color.

If you grow blackberries, cut off the old canes that bore this year's crop and loosely twine the new growth onto the trellis or support.

Fire: know what to do

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Fire is more than the subject of a popular catastrophe movie. Last year for more than 11,000 Americans, fire was a killer and for another 300,000 it was an instrument of pain and personal injury.

Very upsetting, according to the report by the National Commission on Fire Safety and Control, is "the difference with which Americans confront the subject." The attitude that a fire can't happen to you is not only foolhardy; it can be a fatal mistake.

Fire strikes hardest at children and the elderly. Last year, fire was the third largest accidental killer of American children. Many injuries and deaths in fire accidents occur because the victims just didn't know what to do.

Most fires start in living rooms, 37 per cent, followed by kitchens, 22 per cent, basements, 14 per cent, then bedrooms, 13 per cent, according to Rick Goings, president of Dynamics, Inc., which makes fire alarm systems.

If a fire starts:

Everyone should have a plan for a quick escape, preferably two escape routes in case one is closed.

Practice makes perfect. Hold periodic drills to make sure everyone knows what to do and where to go in a variety of circumstances. Remember that most fire deaths occur at night, perhaps while you are sleeping, so don't overlook this possibility during your drill.

Once you have established escape routes, plan a central meeting place, so that everyone can be accounted for.

If anyone's clothing ignites, he should roll over and over on the ground. Running will only fan the flames.

If you sense fire, evacuate the family speedily, closing all doors behind you as you leave. Call the fire department immediately.

Sleep with doors closed. If you suspect fire, feel the door with your palm. If it's hot, don't open it.

Use the window for escape.

In smoke, keep low. Air heated by fire rises. The safest area is near the floor. Cover your mouth and nose with a damp cloth if possible.

Don't waste time getting dressed or gathering valuables. Vanity and greed have no place in a raging fire.

In case of fire, don't panic. If you practice what to do and have an early enough warning, you will be best prepared to carry out the safety measures which will give you the best chance for survival.

No dice

United States law still allows a head of a household to make up to 200 gallons of wine a year for personal use. One man who failed to qualify for a permit because he was a bachelor, tried a few years ago to have his city apartment certified as a bonded winery. On his application, under "Crushing and Pressing Equipment," he listed "fingers 10 and hands 2." Treasury agents inspected his facilities — a closet — and ruled against him.

One of the main jobs of the weatherman is to tell us what kind of weather we are going to have. To help him predict the weather, he must know what the weather is like in other parts of the world.

Every day, weathermen all over the world read barometers, thermometers and other weather instruments. They see what the weather is doing in their area.

In addition, weather satellites orbit the earth, sending back pictures of clouds and weather disturbances across the earth's surface.

All these facts are sent to weather experts who make charts and maps showing the world weather patterns.

They know that low pressures moving across the country may bring storms, and rising pressures often foretell fair weather.

This information is sent to the weatherman in your area.

He then has a pretty good idea of what to say about the weather that's coming to visit you in your area.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Clark Brothers ANNUAL COUNTDOWN SALE EXPLODES WITH VALUES!!

90 NEW BUICKS-OPELS & OLDSMOBILES
DRASTICALLY REDUCED TO AN ALL TIME LOW-$AVE $AVE $AVE

IF YOU CAN BUY A 1975 BUICK-OPEL-OLDSMOBILE OR A COMPARABLE PRICED CAR FOR LESS THAN AT CLARK BROTHERS-BUY IT! IT'S A BARGAIN!

OPEL By BUICK

HERE NOW. . .1975 OPEL ALL NEW FUEL INJECTION CAR!
NOW. . .an already fine road car is even better.

A surface glance at these new, special-edition Opels won't tell you much about what's so special about them. But pop the bonnet on one, and the news is evident. The conventional air cleaner is gone - replaced by a cavernous cold air box. It filters cooler, outside air and feeds it into the injection system. And the carburetor? Don't look for it - replaced by a highly-sophisticated Bosch electronic control unit (actually a miniature, on-board computer) accurately meters out a precise amount of fuel which is delivered directly to the intake valves. First and foremost Opel is a road car. Test drive yours today and feel the difference.
